Peach County Amendment Result Is in Doubt

INCOMPLETE VOTE INDICATES DEFEAT FOR NEW COUNTY

tions—Fulton For Peach.

The outcome of the creation of Peach county from parts of Houston and Macon counties will be in doubt until the official returns from every county in the state are compiled, it was indicated at an early hour Wednesday morning when incomplete returns from 85 counties showed a majority of 438 against the new county. The popular vote from 248 precincts of a total of 1,087 gave advocates of creating the county 12,030; opposing, 12,545.

Advocates of the new county claimed a majority of 6,027 from approximately the same number of counties. Their figures totaled, for, 17,058; against, 11,031.

Upshaw Re-elected.
Re-election of W. D. Upshaw, present representative from the fifth Georgia congressional district over Max H. Wilensky, independent republican candidate, seemed assured, Mr. Upshaw gaining a clean majority in an overwhelming number of precincts. The most important gains made by Wilensky were in the fourth ward of the city of Atlanta by a substantial majority. He carried the first ward by a majority of 1, the vote being 68 and 69.

The democratic senatorial and gubernatorial candidates were without opposition, Judge Walter F. George registering 22,141, while Cliff M. Walker, for governor, had a total of 22,155.

McGregor Wins.
Major C. E. McGregor, of Warren, seemed assured of election to the office of state pension commissioner for Georgia with a substantial majority over Captain W. H. H. Phelps, of Atlanta. Official figures on this race had not been compiled at an early hour this morning but predictions of Major McGregor's election were reported from all sections of the state.

Reports from Houston county were to the effect that the lightest vote in the history of the county was recorded. This was ascribed to the fact that a majority of the voters were in various sections of the state campaigning for and against the new county.

Peach County Vote.
The counties from which reports on Peach county were received, follow:
For the amendment: Atkinson, Barrow, Bleckley, Brooks, Burke, Campbell, Chatham, Coffee, Cook, Crisp, DeKalb, Dodge, Fulton, Glynn, Hart, Henry, Jeff Davis, Jenkins, Lamar, Lanier, Long, Lowndes, McDuffie, Miller, Mitchell, Muscogee, Oglethorpe, Pierce, Polk, Putnam, Richmond, Schley, Seminole, Terrell, Truett, Ware, Whitfield, Wilcox, Murray and Clayton. Total 40.

Against Peach county: Bacon, Baldwin, Bartow, Ben Hill, Bibb, Carroll, Cherokee, Clarke, Clay, Cobb, Colquitt, Coweta, Dooly, Dougherty, Early, Floyd, Gordon, Grady, Greene, Habersham, Hall, Hancock, Houston, Irwin, Jackson, Jasper, Lumpkin, Macon, McIntosh, Meriwether, Newton, Pulaski, Rockdale, Sevier, Spalding, Stephens, Telfair, Troup, Turner, Upson, Walker, Warren, Webster, White, Wilkes, Sumter, Jones, Monroe, Twiggs and Worth. Total 50.

MOTORMAN IS HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH

U. D. Bryan, motorman of the East Lake car which late Monday struck and fatally injured Mrs. Annie E. Cone, aged citizen of East Lake, was arrested by officers late Tuesday night and held for DeKalb county authorities. No specific charge was made against him.

SOLDIER AND WHISKY ARE TAKEN IN RAID

Two white men, one negro and two bottles of whisky were taken in a police raid Tuesday night at the Palace hotel, on Madison avenue. The prisoners were: Martin Terrell, Fort McPherson, soldier; Billie Wiggins, of 100 South Forsyth street, and Robert Carter, negro bell boy. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

Husband Says Wife Hit Him With Boot When Awakening Him

New York, November 7.—His wife used a shoe instead of an alarm clock to wake him up mornings, Bruce MacDonald, landscape gardener, testified when called into court as defendant in a separation suit. She would hit him with a boot before it was time for the alarm clock to ring, he said. Mrs. MacDonald retorted that her husband quarreled because there was no coffee in the house one morning.

SHORTAGE OF COAL IN STATE SERIOUS, DEALERS TELL KEY

Coal Men Say That Cold Weather Would Result in Alarming Situation in Atlanta and Georgia.

DISCRIMINATION LAID TO U. S. COMMISSION

Retail Men Appeal for Relief
From Inadequate
Supply of Coal Cars.
Key Is Silent.

A cold snap will bring about a serious condition in Atlanta and throughout Georgia as a result of shortage of domestic coal, and this shortage is directly due to an inadequate supply of transportation facilities in the southeast, it was declared Tuesday by the Atlanta retail coal dealers' committee in a letter addressed to Mayor Key.

In the letter, the coal dealers appeal for action on the part of the federal fuel administration as the only means to relieve the situation in this section. They flatly state that unless more adequate car service is provided, the retail price of coal in Atlanta will necessarily be raised.

"If you," they further informed the mayor, "as a representative of the city, can arouse the general public interest sufficiently to make ourselves heard with vigor at Washington, we believe that there will be a reduction rather than an increase in the price."

Key Refuses Comment.
Mayor Key Tuesday night refused to comment upon the letter or his probable course along the line of obtaining relief.

"I don't care to say anything about the matter at this time," he told The Constitution. "I intend to get all the facts before me before I take any action."

In affirming that the advent of cold weather would "bring about a serious situation locally and throughout the state," the dealers frankly assert their belief that "markets in the southeast are being discriminated against in the distribution of coal car equipment."

They are equally positive in saying that the only means of lowering the price of coal is "by furnishing an adequate car supply to the mines in Tennessee and Kentucky, which serve the southeastern section."

Gets Fewer Cars.
This table shows that the Cumberland Valley division was allotted a far smaller percentage of cars than the Knoxville division for the months of May, June, July and August, with a small increase in percentage for the month of September.

"Most of the domestic coal sold by dealers in Atlanta comes from the Cumberland Valley division," the letter declares. "There has been a better car supply in the Alabama coal fields, but that is not a satisfactory coal for this market."

"The mines are operating at 20 per cent of their capacity," the committee adds, after inserting figures to prove the truth of this statement, "and as a result, their costs have increased materially, and at $7.50 per ton, they are not making any money. Whereas, with a car supply of three or four days per week, at $3.50 per ton, they would be making a satisfactory profit."

ORGANIZATION WORK SLATED THIS MORNING

Program of Tenth Annual North Georgia Methodist
Session Announced So Far as Completed.

BY DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
As predicted, the group insurance plan for the entire north Georgia Methodist conference, was not brought to a definite conclusion at the gathering of the members of the Widows and Orphans' Aid association, held at Wesley Memorial church Tuesday night. The matter has occupied the attention of a great many Methodists in this conference during the year, but a definite and final decision is yet to be made. As the matter now stands, the conference will probably not take out group insurance at all, but will double the mortality fees of members of the association, so that families of deceased members will receive benefits in the sum of $1,000 instead of $500.

Rev. M. K. Patillo, of Comer, presented the group plan to the body, and stated the details of it, announcing costs and benefits, and urged its acceptance. Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt, of Atlanta, opposed the group plan, and said his investigations show that the group insurance will cost at least $23 per thousand. He urged that, instead of taking out insurance that would cost more, the association double its mortality fees from $2.00 to $4.00, and thus pay benefits of $1,000 to the family of a member at the time of his death.

Venable Asks Delay.
Rev. G. F. Venable, of Athens, urged that further investigation be made, and that the matter be brought up before the annual conference in session. He moved that a committee be appointed to work out the details and bring the plan before the legal conference for consideration. Rev. J. E. Russell, of Norwood, suggested that, since the aid association is not an incorporated body, the plan must be adopted by the legal conference, which is an incorporated body.

The venerable motion prevailed, and John A. Manuget, Rev. J. E. Ellis and Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt were appointed a committee to make further investigation and bring the matter before the legal conference.

Other features of the meeting Tuesday night were addresses delivered by Dr. C. C. Jarell, of Augusta; Revs. C. C. Cary, Dr. E. F. Dempsey, of Atlanta, and Dr. J. A. Sharp, of Young Harris, all touching upon the various phases of the work of the association. In Mr. Cary's address the facts were brought out that the association is an incorporated body.

NEW YORK STATE FOR DEMOCRATS
Alfred E. Smith, Gubernatorial Candidate, Leads Ticket in Crushing
Defeat for G. O. P.

New York, November 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, rolling up the greatest plurality New York city has ever given any candidate in any election, today was swept back into the gubernatorial chair from which he had been ejected in 1920 by Governor Nathan L. Miller.

Republicans not only admitted the defeat of Mr. Miller but conceded that William M. Calder had lost his seat in the senate to Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of New York city, formerly mayor of New York, and until today an untested factor in New York politics.

Beats Record.
With the success of their ticket leaders, democrats were claiming gains in congress and the legislature, but

Andy Gump Leads Ticket; Election Seems Assured

OPPOSITION REFUSES TO CONCEDE DEFEAT

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Did Andy Gump run?
We'll say he did!
In the general election Tuesday he smashed all the traditions of the old-line parties and broke their machines at the same time. He ran so fast that it took two men to say "Here he comes," and the other to say "There he goes."

Incomplete returns from all parts of the country indicated Tuesday night that Gump had defeated the combined opposition in his race for congress and that he will soon be his seat at Washington as the first congressman from the United States at-large. Complete returns had not been received, and enough votes to change the result are still unreported. But on the face of the returns already in, Gump is apparently the winner.

As millions of people waited in agonized suspense, the early returns began to arrive Tuesday night a short time after the polls were closed. It was soon seen that the "100-per cent-for-the-people" candidate was leading, and mighty cheers resounded throughout the land, according to the news dispatches. When it was seen that Gump was the apparent winner over the two regular party candidates, the excitement was almost unbearable.

Gump Refuses Statement.
The apparently elected congressman would give out no statement relative to the race Tuesday night other than what he says in his regular corner in The Constitution. It is expected he will make public a complete statement of his future policies later, should final returns confirm the present indications that he is elected.

Although refusing to concede the election of Gump, newspapers hostile to his candidacy admitted that the race was close and that the contest would be decided by a narrow margin. Managers of the Gump campaign were confident that the victory had been won after they had examined carefully the returns and hastened to congratulate their idol who wears "no man's collar."

As for the successful candidate himself, he and Min and Chester began immediately to make plans for their trip to Washington. Although it was late at night when the returns showed that Gump was the leader, Min Gump called up her dressmaker over the telephone and made a special engagement for Wednesday morning. She also talked to the clothier about some duds for little Chester and made inquiries concerning school facilities for Chester in Washington.

Andy Gump himself took the field late Tuesday and sent some hot shots at some of his most cordial political enemies. He found time in this sport to give his tailor an order for a new Jim Swinger coat and to talk to a real estate agent about renting out the old home and obtaining a lease on a flat in Washington.

Get on Band Wagon.
As the news of the apparent victory was flashed over the country hundreds of telegrams began to pour into the Gump home congratulating him on his victory in behalf of the people. Even some of his most hated enemies ran true to political form by beginning their first attempts to climb aboard the Gump bandwagon.

Only the definite news that Gump has won the fight beyond a shadow of a doubt is needed to start the bands to playing and the torch-light processions moving. The better who backed Gump in his race are getting ready to ask it on their belts and then the celebration will start in earnest. The fact that there is a Gump bandwagon is a fact.

Democratic Committee
Chairman Declares
Predicted Victory Is Being
Verified by Returns.

Washington, November 7.—A statement issued at 11 o'clock tonight from the democratic national committee headquarters in the name of Chairman Cordell Hull declared that "the prediction of a great democratic victory made last Monday in a statement from democratic national headquarters is being verified by the returns from all sections of the country which have been heard from at this hour."

"The wonderful victory won by Governor Smith and Senator Copeland in New York," the statement continued, "will only vary in degree, according to early reports received at democratic national headquarters."

"General dissatisfaction with the republican administration and the republican congress is clearly indicated in the returns received up to this hour."

"The early returns are from the east and the middle west where democratic candidates generally are leading, and if these leads are maintained not only will these sections record a victory but will give promise of a nationwide revolt against the republican party with a restoration of the democratic party to power so far as it can be accomplished at this election. The republican party has failed the country utterly and every indication at this hour is that the people have decided to return to the party of performance, progress and prosperity."

On Alleged Embezzler;
"Persecution," He Says
Charged with misappropriating $28,000 while secretary and treasurer of the Southern Brush and Broom company, R. O. Brooks, insurance agent, was arrested by Fulton county authorities Friday. He was released after giving $5,000 bond for his appearance to answer a charge of larceny after trust.

Brooks filed a $25,000 damage suit in Fulton superior court a few days ago against Dr. J. Q. Brantley, president of the company, whom he accused of having maliciously charged him with the theft of $28,000 of the company's funds.

Louis A. Burton, attorney for Brooks asserted Tuesday night that the warrant was served on his client out of malice in an attempt to intimidate him because he had filed the slander suit.

In his recent suit Brooks alleged that he had never misappropriated a cent of the company's money.

Late Tuesday when the first bundles of checks received in payment of dues of new members were piled indiscriminately on Assistant Secretary J. E. Addicks' desk, the enthusiasm over the first material returns of the chamber of commerce membership campaign mounted high among both solicitors and leaders.

Obviously the returns were very gratifying. T. C. Law, leading one division of the majors, frankly declared that the reports of individual men, whose work could be accurately checked, showed remarkable results.

The work of checking the returns from all the workers will continue Wednesday morning. Most of the workers turned in their reports from 5 o'clock until 6 Tuesday afternoon, but a number of captains were late, and as the entire personnel of the chamber, both officials and employees, were fatigued from the enormous amount of work carried on after hours during the past few days, it was decided to close the office for the day.

A number of the workers reported as high as eleven memberships for their first day. The unfavorable weather furnished quite a difficulty to the solicitors, but nothing in the weather could dampen the determination manifested, and although it was noted that a number of instances of wet feet had come to light, it was humorously remarked that not a single instance of "cold feet" could be found among the leaders giving their time to the movement.

150 Work in Rain.
Field work began immediately following a meeting of Generals T. C. Law, C. K. Ayer, their majors, the captains and the team men Tuesday morning. From this meeting more than 150 business leaders went out.

LATE ELECTION BULLETINS

Ohio.
Columbus, Ohio, November 7.—Early unofficial returns from today's election in Ohio indicated that the results may be close and probably undetermined until practically the entire vote of the state is counted.

The early returns from about one-ninth of the voting districts showed Congressman Fess, republican, leading Senator Pomeroy for senator by more than 3,500 votes. About an equal number of voting districts showed A. W. Donahy, democrat, leading Carmi A. Thompson, republican, and President Harding's personal choice, in the gubernatorial race by almost 5,000 votes.

The vote in 906 of the state's 8,167 precincts for senator was Fess, 79,730; Pomeroy, 78,033; Mrs. Virginia Greene, independent, trailing with only 961 votes.

The favorable to adoption of the beer and wine constitutional amendment took a jump when 100 precincts in Hamilton county, (Cincinnati), were heard from, casting the vote for the amendment 64,445 and against 63,445 on returns from 676 precincts.

Tennessee.
Nashville, Tenn., November 7.—Congressman Joseph W. Byrnes, democratic state campaign manager, in a statement issued at 11 o'clock tonight, declared that "the entire democratic ticket has swept the state by what will appear to be an old-time democratic majority."

Judge Harry A. Luck, treasurer of the republican state campaign committee, said:

"Middle Tennessee counties heard from show a marked percentage democratic increase but not enough, however, to give the democrats a majority."

ALLIES TAKE FIRM AND UNITED STAND IN TURKISH CRISIS

Stand Together, De-

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Constantinople, November 7.—The allied commissioners in Constantinople have been given full authority to declare a state of siege or take any other measures to preserve order.

This was the response of the allied governments to the cable requests of the high commissioners for permission to take complete and speedy action. It is now certain that the allied authorities here will deal drastically with any disturbance or infringement of the Mudania convention.

British, French and Italian are as one in their determination to check the powerful movement which the Kemalists have set in motion. The British have at no time since the intentions of the Turkish nationalists were made evident relaxed to the least degree their vigilance, and now French warships are about to proceed here or are on their way to strengthen the allied authority.

Lieutenant-General Harrington, commander-in-chief of the allied forces, has informed Raft Pasha, the new governor, that he would permit no usurpation of allied authority, and Raft explained that the sweeping demands for evacuation of the allied military forces and for other concessions came from the Ankara government. The Kemalists have even attempted to take over the customs revenues, but the British authorities have decided to operate the customs themselves.

The calling of three additional classes to the Turkish colors is interpreted here as merely a show of force.

ALLIES PRESENT UNITED FRONT.
BY RALPH H. TURNER.
London, November 7.—The allies are meeting the Near East crisis with a display of unity that has been rare since the world war ended.

The Franco-British front has not been so solid in many months. There is absolutely no intention on the part of Great Britain, Italy or France of capitulating to the extreme demands of the Turkish nationalists at Constantinople. These demands will be resisted by force, if necessary.

It is hoped that this display of allied unity will dissuade Mustafa Kemal from forcing the issue. Yet the latest dispatches from Constantinople report a serious situation. The Turks have ordered dissolution of allied government commissions, have discharged the allied officials at the customs offices and have in other ways taken over control of the city. The allied nationals have protested but the Turks continue to gather up the various functions of government from allied hands.

The seriousness of the Near East crisis was revealed when Lord Derby, the war minister, suddenly abandoned his campaign tour and came rushing back to London.

Emergency Meeting.
He had been summoned after an emergency meeting of the cabinet. The cabinet had just received a message from Sir Charles Harrington, British representative at Constantinople. What word the communication contained was not disclosed but it was regarded as significant that shortly after the message was received, the S. O. S. call for the war minister went out.

Still, there is a feeling that after

Boston, November 7.—When returns from a little more than half of the election precincts in Massachusetts had been counted, Senator Lodge, republican, was trailing 3,790 votes behind Gaston, democrat. BY ROBERT J. BENDER.
New York, November 7.—In an election Tuesday which, for its dramatic results, paralleled the G. O. P. landslide two years ago, the democratic party reduced the republican majority of 24 in the senate, smashed down the republican house majority from 169 to less than 40, and confronted President Harding with a most serious legislative situation for his next two important years of office.

Sweeping the eastern seaboard states, which long ago were looked to with great anxiety by republican leaders, the democrats gained seats in New York, New Jersey, Maryland, probably West Virginia, gave Senators McLean, in Connecticut, and Dupont, in Delaware, a terrifically narrow margin and at midnight had placed Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in extreme danger.

Meantime they appeared likely to hold their own by narrowly returning Senator Peter Gerry, democrat, in Rhode Island, re-electing Senator Pomeroy in Ohio, Reed in Missouri, King in Utah and coming out ahead in Montana and Nevada. They threatened to add to their senate gains in Indiana, Washington and North Dakota, while Senator Kilgore, republican, is running second to Shipstead, the labor candidate, in Minnesota.

Problem for Harding.
From the returns at midnight, it would seem more than possible that the republican lead in the senate might be cut down to less than a dozen. Should this result, with Smith Brown coming in from Iowa augmenting the increasingly obstreperous forces of republican independence in the upper chamber, President Harding would have a tremendous legislative problem on his hands.

Coupled with the overwhelming democratic tide, it appeared that Illinois and Ohio had taken on a "wet" political garb, which, coupled with Edwards' victory in New Jersey, wet victories in Maryland, and the forecast defeat of Congressman Volstead in Minnesota, augured ill for the peace of congressional mind on this question.

The democratic victory will mean, too, a reopening of such questions as the seating of Senator Newberry, of justice, repeal of the Esch-Cummins railroad act, all of which were campaign issues of the democrats.

Eighteen Million Eggs--1,500,000 Dozen-- We Are Compelled to Buy Annually Out of Georgia.

Perhaps no story of any particular crop or product of Georgia is more interesting—or furnishes more startling figures of Georgia's indifference to her own interest—than that of poultry and eggs.

Eggs perhaps are next to bread—next to the "staff of life"—in their importance as a food product and in their consumption by the people of the world. They are one of the most important and essential commodities of food. Nearly everybody eats them, in one form or another, and no cook can get along without them.

So, it must be that millions of eggs are consumed every day in the year. And so it is that insofar as possible fresh, nutritious eggs are not only desirable but essential.

Properly handled, eggs in large salable quantities are a splendid money product. They have made many sections of our country very prosperous. They mean ready, quick money almost every day in the year.

But let us tell you just a little about our experience with eggs—how and WHY we are compelled to go into neighboring States to buy hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of eggs every year.

In the first place, just as far as lies within our power, we offer to our patrons QUALITY goods. A few people, doubtless, may have the idea that "an egg is an egg," and when freshly laid, one is just as good as another. There never was a greater mistake. Eggs can have QUALITY—NUTRITION—WHOLE-SOMENESS—just as any other food product.

And hens that are not housed and fed properly, hens that are allowed to roam at will, existing almost entirely upon grass and bugs and worms—hens that are not separated from the males of the species—produce the kind of eggs that measure up LEAST to the requirements of QUALITY food.

As a general rule, that's the kind of eggs Georgia produces. Georgians have not learned as yet—but they are learning fast, we are glad to say—all the important points about egg production.

So that is the reason we have to go into Missouri, and Tennessee, and other States—States where they take care of their hens, and where they feed them properly—to get the eggs of quality we insist upon having for Rogers' stores.

Go with us for just a moment to the egg department of our warehouses on Whitehall street. We would be glad to have you go. See our row of expert candlers at work—a half dozen of them—for we candle every egg before offering it to the trade. Look yourself through the large, white, clean, firm eggs shipped in by the carload from other States. Every one solid—full of nutrition. Break one of them—or as many as you like—see the solid, firm yolk, and the thick, heavy white, that clings in a long, unbreakable stream to fork or spoon. The hens that lay these eggs have been cared for—housed comfortably, fed scientifically—and their product carefully gathered and prepared for the market.

Now candle a Georgia egg—see the difference. Thin and watery. The whole of the inside turning from side to side as you turn the egg. Break it—the yellow thin and spreading—the white with no cementing quality. This is not true, of course, with ALL Georgia eggs, but it is true of the greatest majority of the eggs gathered in Georgia and offered in the markets of this State.

This is a statement that we may be criticised for making, but we are making it in the interest of Georgia. For Georgians have much yet to learn about the importance of caring for hens—about their scientific feeding to produce firm, nutritious eggs—about the desirability of infertile eggs over fertile eggs when it comes to preserving them for market and preparing them for shipment.

Eggs must be of the right sort—they must be good, solid, infertile eggs—if they are to be accumulated in large quantities during the heavy laying season in order to have enough for consumption during certain other seasons of the year.

For instance, we are right now beginning a season, running until about January 1st, when it is absolutely impossible to get many fresh laid eggs. The winter season, as everyone knows, brings a scarcity of fresh eggs. Consequently, the eggs produced earlier in the year—particularly along in March, April, May and June—have to be preserved for marketing in the winter months.

The States supplying the L. W. Rogers Company with the big shipments we will be receiving for the next three or four months, gathered the great bulk of those eggs many weeks ago. They are the kind of eggs that preserve so perfectly it is practically impossible to tell them from eggs produced last week. They know how to select them and how to store them. And while we sell them, labeled as storage eggs (for we never deceive our patrons), very few could distinguish them from freshly laid eggs.

These are the kind of eggs that practically all large dealers in Georgia have to depend upon, whether consumers generally know it or not. There are very, very few really fresh laid eggs on the market, nor will there be for the next few months.

Georgia eggs, as a general rule, are not the kind that can be kept in any sort of storage. The elements to properly preserve them are missing in the eggs themselves for the reasons we have already mentioned.

And Georgia, of all states, is a place where this condition should not exist. With the climate so perfect that chickens could be hatched and raised all the year round, making it possible to produce fresh eggs 12 months in the year, if hens are properly fed and cared for, certainly there ought not to be any occasion to send out of Georgia every year for our own needs thousands upon thousands of dollars for eggs produced months ago in other states.

But there must be co-operation in marketing—uniformity in packing—producers working together for the benefit of all.

When Georgia learns how to produce eggs in this way all the year round—produce the best and finest and freshest, which she can do—of course, there will be a big demand in other states for Georgia eggs, and if we do not consume our own product we can at least bring an amount of money into the state for practically fresh eggs equal to the amount we now send out of it for storage eggs.

Now, let us tell you a little about quantity as well as quality. The figures may surprise you.

The L. W. Rogers Company handle an average of 1,000 cases of eggs per week—50,000 cases annually. Thirty dozen to a case makes 1,500,000 dozen—or eighteen million eggs. At an average of 30 cents per dozen, and buying the great bulk of our eggs from neighboring States, that means that we send out of Georgia nearly $450,000.00—certainly close to $400,000.00—for eggs every year.

And we do only about one-sixth of the egg business in this immediate section. Six times $400,000.00 means $2,400,000.00. What would the figure be throughout the whole State, if other retailers and dealers have similar experiences to ours?—and many of them do.

Figure it out yourself what Georgia is losing in a failure to appreciate the importance of her egg industry. It almost staggers us.

And now comes another peculiar thing about Georgia's poultry and egg industry—a most startling thing.

Despite the fact that thousands—and millions—of dollars go out of Georgia every year for eggs—despite the fact that Georgia hens are not fed and cared for scientifically, as in large egg-producing States—despite the fact that millions of our chickens roam at will over the farms of their owners—and despite the fact that practically every ingredient for every known brand of chicken feed made in distant States could be grown or produced in Georgia—despite all this, Georgia sends out of her borders annually millions of dollars for chicken feed.

Listen to some figures: The same concern in a neighboring State that posted us a few days ago about dairy feed also gave us these surprising figures. They sent to Georgia within the last twelve months 145,147 sacks, weighing 100 pounds each, of various kinds of chicken feed.

This included chicken chowder, baby chick feed, hen chow, and fattening feed for chickens. That means that this one concern, which admits that it perhaps does only about 20 per cent of this kind of business in Georgia, sent 14,514,000 pounds of chicken feed into this State. Taking 5 cents as the average per pound, this means $725,735 was paid by Georgians to this one concern. The figures would run into the millions over the State, taking their experience as a basis.

And we are told that big Georgia marble concerns ship thousands of pounds of grit to big chicken-feed houses in other States. This is returned in packages—(again the importance of packages)—and retailed to our chicken owners. Of course, somebody pays the freight.

Just in conclusion, we want again to state that we would be pleased to buy every egg of the 50,000 cases we sell direct from Georgia. But until Georgians pay more attention to this industry—until they learn to care for and feed their hens properly—until they adopt the system of separation of males and females—until they learn how to select and pack, and put eggs into salable condition—in fact, until they learn more than the A B C of the egg industry—our company, like scores of other egg dealers, will be compelled to continue sending Georgia money into other States for this commodity.

There's no reason why Georgia—why Georgians—cannot produce as fine poultry and eggs as are produced in the world—but it takes CARE and THOUGHT, and STUDY and WORK.

Let's go, Georgians.

Sincerely,

SCOTT W. ALLEN,

Vice President and General Manager

HARDING TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, November 7.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—It was officially announced at the white house today that President Harding will on Thursday issue a call for a special session of congress to convene November 20.

In making the announcement, it was explained, however, that circumstances may arise to change the program.

Although it has been generally understood that the president would re-assemble congress some time the latter part of November no official definite information has been given on the subject, until today. The decision became known following the president's conference with the cabinet.

At the same time, it was announced at the white house that a successor to Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Day, recently resigned, will be nominated by President Harding just as soon as congress returns to Washington. Officials added, however, that it had not yet been determined whether the nominee will be a democrat or republican, or from the north or south.

From other reliable sources it was learned that one of the next two appointments to the supreme court bench will be a democrat if being explained president had no desire to make the court a partisan body. This in line with recent reductions made by capital observers in view of the expected resignation at an early date of Associate Justice Pitney, who is said to be anxious to retire.

Not having reached the retirement age, although he has served over ten years on the bench, Justice Pitney has been resigning with full rights. In view of this, capital gossip has it that a resolution will be introduced at the coming session of congress permitting such retirement. President Harding then would have two vacancies to fill, one of which will go to a democrat, administration spokesmen have declared.

The president is said to be inclined against the appointment of men over 60 years of age, although white house officials indicated today that no definite policy had been adopted on the subject. It was also said that an abundance of material had been brought forth for the office now vacant, with practically every state represented, including democrats and republicans.

ALLIES TAKE FIRM AND UNITED STAND

all, maybe Mustafa Kemal, after the fall of the provincial party, is making a clever bluff in his demand that the allies evacuate Constantinople and that all foreign war vessels enter the straits only on permission of the Turkish nationalist government. One theory is that Kemal, for reasons best known to himself, wants to know just how united the allies are. If that is his motive, he has found out, for the allied representatives at Constantinople promptly informed the Turks that they did not intend to yield in any respect to the demands. Furthermore, they insisted that the Mudania armistice agreement be enforced to the letter.

May Be Trotsky.

Their home governments are backing them up in this. France who was somewhat sympathetic to the Kemalists at Mudania to the chagrin of Great Britain, has viewed the latest tendencies of the Turkish nationalists with alarm and is drawing closer to Downing street.

Diplomatic circles are hinting that the hidden hand of bolshevism is directing the Kemalists movements. Some United News and other dispatches indicate Leon Trotsky, the soviet war minister, is in Angora, but the foreign office has no information on this point.

into the rainy weather and started the real work of the campaign. President Foose, heading the campaign; Secretary Barker, General Law, and Ayer and W. K. Smith, director, made short talks to the workers just before they were provided with their lists of prospects and their supplies of application cards.

In these talks oratory was thrown to the winds, and the real issue plainly put before the body. Hard work coupled with determination and enthusiasm manifested by their presence at meeting under such unfavorable weather conditions were stressed as the means through which this movement for a bigger, better, more prosperous Atlanta would be put through to success.

As the meeting was drawing to a

Hartford, Conn.—The funeral of Morgan G. Bulkeley, former United States senator, who died at his home here last night, will be held Thursday afternoon. Flaws were at half-past ten today on the state capital and the municipal buildings.

With this the Kiwanians rose nobly to the occasion and promised support. These new recruits for the ranks of the workers will also meet at the chamber of commerce Wednesday to receive assignments and supplies. In all, it is estimated that at least 121 new workers will be added to the force Wednesday.

B. W. D. Getting Results.

The Business Women's division also reports gratifying results in its campaign for 200 new members. Miss Leona Westbrook, chairman of the membership committee, and Miss Mabel B. Kendrick, chairman of the division, met with the team leaders Tuesday afternoon at 5:15, at which it was announced that approximately 200 members were already assured, and that the entire estimate of 300 would be secured with ease before the close of the week.

A number of those soliciting for this division reported at the meeting that they were asked, on every hand, what could a business woman get out of a membership in this division? Miss Kendrick, in a statement, said: "What can a business woman get out of being a member of the business women's division? Answer that with the question of what does she put into it? What one gets out of this, as in the case with everything else, depends upon what one puts into it."

"For the first time in history the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce gave the business women a chance to share actively in the building of the city of their residence. We are leaders in this field, and it is a wonderful opportunity we have."

"Through the business women's division is directly connected with all the movements for a better, cleaner, happier city. Isn't it wonderful to see some fine project like a new park or playground secured for the benefit of the city? Isn't it wonderful to realize, upon such an occasion, that she is closely connected with and personally responsible for such an improvement?"

"That is exactly what is offered through our division. It is an opportunity, a privilege, an honor to be a member, and we want the type of business woman who appreciates the things we are doing and the things contemplated."

Meeting at 12:30 Wednesday, the team leaders and workers would meet with her and Miss Kendrick at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday to report on their work and to render any mutual help that might be needed.

Plans for the campaign Wednesday of the general body are similar to the close and the workers were getting their supplies. Dr. M. H. Hair, formerly of Spartanburg, S. C., but now a resident of Atlanta, was introduced. Dr. Hair climbed on a chair and remarked:

Spartanburg Got 2,100.

"Listen, fellows. I was in Spartanburg three years ago when they put on a campaign. They got 2,100 members from a population of 24,000. They got them by working for them and making the corporations take the number they should take. You can do it, too."

When these same men began coming in at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, the checks they carried and their stories of the day's experiences proved the prediction of Dr. Hair. The actual field work behind them seemed to have strengthened their determination and boosted their enthusiasm.

One or two majors came out with a complaint that they had not been given any of the "hard ones" on which to demonstrate their ability to prove that the interests of Atlanta can be served. They only had the chamber of commerce. To these "malcontents" was announced the fact that their services would be utilized effectively as soon as they were made of the "hard ones" whom others had found too much of a task.

"Atlanta To Be Issue."

Instructions have been given to those calling on prospects to make a complete record of their call. Every time a prospect fails to sign up, he is asked to give his reason, this reason is written on the back of the card which contains his name. These cards are to be turned back to the directors of the campaign for further consideration.

"Atlanta is the issue," declared W. K. Smith, "and it is for Atlanta that we are building our movement. In the isolated instances where it is impossible to land a prospect, we want to know exactly why he does not wish to help us build our city. In many cases it will be found that his objection is merely an excuse—and where it is merely an excuse we want to know it as such, and where it is a real objection we feel more confident that it can be satisfactorily disposed of."

"This movement is the real test of Atlanta's progressive spirit. It means more to the city than anything that could have been started. It means more to business than any investment that could be made."

"Of course, we appreciate the fact that in some cases we will meet with the attitude of 'let George do it.' One man may feel that his not becoming a member will not hinder the movement to a great extent—and that he will profit where he has not invested. We shall ferret out these cases, and the records we make as the men call on them will put before the future of Atlanta the data on which we can formulate a method of procedure."

"We are determined," said T. C. Law, general, "that no mere matter of indifference shall hinder our work. Every man will land his prospect and have a written reason for not doing it, and if one man fails to bring in a member it is no evidence that some other man will not land him."

"Ours is a plain business proposition—as much a matter of investment as stocks or bonds—and I know the men behind it can convince Atlanta business men that such is the case. It is an investment in the future of Atlanta—and on the future of Atlanta depends the prosperity of the people here—what we are now doing to build up Atlanta will help all of us."

Rotarians Volunteer.

Mr. Law delivered an address before the Rotary club Tuesday and besides the many Rotarians already enrolled for active work in the campaign, about 75 others volunteered to take up the work and promised to be on hand at the chamber of commerce Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock to receive their assignments and supplies.

President W. O. Foose appeared before the Kiwanis club with a plea for support of Atlanta in this movement, and received a hearty response. Following his address, the Kiwanians stated that the chamber of commerce would be needed by the organization when the great Kiwanis convention comes next year.

"We expect Atlanta to stand by us," ran the statement, "and we are glad of this opportunity to stand by Atlanta."

With this the Kiwanians rose nobly to the occasion and promised support. These new recruits for the ranks of the workers will also meet at the chamber of commerce Wednesday to receive assignments and supplies. In all, it is estimated that at least 121 new workers will be added to the force Wednesday.

KENNEDY IS DIRECTOR IN ATLANTA NATIONAL

To Fill Austell's Place—Donovan to Manage Peachtree Office.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Atlanta National bank Tuesday J. S. Kennedy, cashier of the bank, was elected to the directorate to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Alfred Austell.

George R. Donovan, vice president, was elected manager of the Peachtree office to be opened January 1 in the Piedmont hotel, with James F. Alexander, assistant cashier, as assistant manager.

Mr. Kennedy has been with the Atlanta National bank for twenty-seven years. He has filled every position in the bank from junior clerk to cashier. He has been especially active in civic affairs, and is now president of the Kiwanis club and an active member of other civic organizations. His wide acquaintance with business conditions, as well as his large personal acquaintance, will make him an extremely valuable member of the Atlanta National board.

Mr. Donovan is also a veteran banker. For thirty years he has devoted his entire time to banking in Atlanta. He went to the Atlanta National twenty years ago as a general utility man. As assistant cashier, cashier and vice president, he has proved his fitness for the position of manager of the Atlanta National's first branch office. At the present time he is a member of the board of directors and chairman of the board of directors of that body.

Mr. Alexander, who will be associated with Mr. Donovan in the management of the Peachtree office, was with the American National before the merger of that bank with the Atlanta National. He is among the most prominent of the younger bank-

What becomes of 30,000,000 cement sacks a year?

Practically 90 per cent of the 95,000,000 barrels of portland cement shipped last year was delivered in returnable cotton sacks.

To supply users of cement promptly, the industry must have about 200,000,000 sacks either on hand or in use.

The sack method of shipping is most convenient. There are four sacks to a barrel. Each sack contains 94 pounds of cement—a cubic foot. And a cubic foot is a handy volume in proportioning concrete mixtures.

When cement is shipped, the sacks are billed to the purchaser. When they are returned, they are bought back at the same price if they are in usable or repairable condition. This involves much work in checking, cleaning, sorting and repairing.

But in spite of the fact that every good cement sack is redeemable, 30,000,000 of the sacks shipped every year fail to come back—a loss of nearly $5,000,000 a year at present prices of new sacks.

To replace these "lost, strayed or stolen" sacks requires annually over 30,000 bales of cotton. It requires that the textile industry weave a strip of cloth 30 inches wide and 17,000 miles long. It means that 1,600 looms are kept working full time for a year.

Thousands of sacks returned to the cement mills for redemption are damaged, yet accepted for credit, if they can be repaired. This repair is done by the cement manufacturer at his own expense.

A medium sized plant shipping, say 1,000,000 barrels of cement a year, has to repair an average of 6,000 sacks per day from among those returned for credit. This keeps 6 people constantly working at rapidly operated electric sewing machines. In a million barrel a year plant, 22 people are constantly employed sorting, counting, repairing and otherwise caring for returned sacks so that they may again be used.

At the present time $30,000,000 would be a conservative estimate of the investment which the cement industry has in cotton sacks.

Sacks are one of the lesser, but nevertheless important items in the cement industry.

Fort Worth, Texas, which has been alternating with Akron, Ohio, for the honor of showing the largest increase, came to the front again in October with a gain of 40.38 per cent. Fort Worth's gains during the year have been remarkable. In July an increase of 83.06 per cent was registered over July 1921; in August the increase was 50.78 per cent and in September it was 31.94.

Second place went to Columbus, Ohio, who reported a gain of 31.83 per cent, while Los Angeles was third with 26.35; Providence, R. Only one decrease was shown during the month, Richmond, Va., reporting a loss of 5.34 per cent.

Total receipts for the city of Atlanta amounted to $24,777,328.09, which is greater than any month in the year. Receipts for October 1921 were $21,600,900.84, making a gain for the past month of $3,107,418.25.

Missionary Alliance Will Meet in Atlanta During Rader Service

Another service will be added to the daily program of revival services at the Gospel Tabernacle beginning Sunday, when ministers and lay leaders of the Christian and Missionary alliance from several states will gather to hear the Rev. Luke Rader. Sunday will mark the opening of the annual convention of the southern and southwestern districts of the alliance.

Mr. Rader conducted five services Tuesday, speaking three times in addition to his two services at the Gospel Tabernacle. Mr. Rader, who won many laurels in his college days because of athletic prowess, made an instant hit with the Georgia Tech student body, which he addressed at the morning chapel hour Tuesday. The evangelist addressed the noon luncheon meeting of the state committee of the railroad Y. M. C. A. and conducted a meeting in the afternoon at the Home for Incurables. Mrs. Rader, a talented soprano soloist, sang a number of gospel songs which the inmates had requested.

Mr. Rader spoke Tuesday evening on "What God Wants You to See," urging his hearers to obtain a clear vision of the fact that Christ came to take from the shoulders of man the load of sin.

In the Tuesday night crowd was Evangelist W. P. Sharp, of Chicago, a former associate of Mr. Rader and of his brother Paul Rader. Dr. Sharp closed a revival Sunday at Demorest, Ga., and said he was en route to Thomasville, where he will open a tent meeting.

Among the leading speakers of the alliance convention will be E. J. Richards, of New York, home secretary of the alliance; R. A. Forrest, of Teococ, Ga., district superintendent; C. M. Murphy, Winston-Salem, N. C.; The Rev. Thomas L. Marsden, pastor of the Gospel Tabernacle, is assistant district superintendent and has charge of alliance churches in seven states.

NEW APARTMENTS TO BE BUILT HERE

Report of Proposed 'Biltmore Apartments' Confirmed—Architects and Contractors Coming.

An apartment house surpassed in grandeur by no other structure of its kind in the city will be built and operated as an adjunct to the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, which is to be erected at West Peachtree, Fifth, Sixth and Cypress streets, by John McE. Bowman, of New York, and William Candler, of Atlanta, according to definite announcement Tuesday.

Telegraphic announcement did not give the approximate size or cost of the apartment house, but it is expected to compare favorably in size with the hotel which will contain 600 rooms.

Mr. Candler, who becomes vice president of the Atlanta Biltmore corporation, left New York Tuesday for Atlanta. He is expected here some time Thursday.

Mr. Bowman, who is president of the Biltmore system, will be in Atlanta within three weeks, it was stated. Upon his arrival here additional details as to plans will be disclosed.

The Atlanta Biltmore is to be on the site of the Biltmore and Commodore hotels of New York, having 600 outside rooms, each with bath.

There will be a large ballroom for conventions, a grill room and a large restaurant. Many other features such as banquet halls and dance halls will be included.

Small meeting rooms on some of the upper floors will enable patrons to hold directors' meetings, political conferences and round table gatherings.

New Sample Rooms. One modern feature will be new style sample rooms, with salesmen's bedrooms adjoining.

Robert J. Kennedy, publicity director for the Biltmore hotels, was quoted as making the following statement in New York:

"The people of Atlanta seem to think that all the preliminary work has been completed and estimates and plans drawn up. This is not so. We have not even inspected the property yet, although we are working on the plans."

"You may say that the hotel and apartment house will cost many millions, much more than three million. It will be many stories high—more than ten; in fact, a real skyscraper, as big as any in the city. We have no architect's drawings as yet."

Candler Complimented.

He commended Mr. Candler's interest and pride in his home city and said that he was always anxious to do all in his power to advance the interests of Atlanta.

Colonel William Alken Starrett, of the firm of Starrett Bros. of New York, the contractors who will build the hotel; Leonard Schultze, of the firm of Schultze & Weaver, architects, and Charles Flynn, vice president of the new Seville Biltmore in Havana, Cuba, all are expected to arrive in Atlanta sometime Saturday to inspect the site for the big structure.

Mr. Schultze is considered one of America's leading architects. He was consulting architect in the building of the gigantic Biltmore and the Commodore in New York. He also was consulting architect for the Westchester Biltmore Country club, at Rye, N. Y., the main clubhouse building of which is regarded as one of the finest buildings of its kind in the world.

Mr. Schultze is the consulting architect for the Los Angeles Biltmore, now being built at a cost of $7,000,000. He is now preparing plans for the Seville Biltmore which is to be built in Havana, Cuba.

During the war, Colonel Starrett, the contractor, was chairman of the emergency construction committee of the Council of National Defense in charge of the government's building program, including construction of armaments.

SHORTAGE OF COAL IN STATE SERIOUS

transportation to the southeast, the dealers add, is the fact that the rail car situation has been in a serious angle, resulting from the recent strike.

Discrimination Felt. The main cause, however, the dealers add, is the fact that "the policy of the national fuel administration is to protect and get a sufficient supply of coal to points in the north, east and northwest and let the southeast take care of itself."

"The railroads upon which we are depending for coal in this territory, during the strike allowed their cars to go to points north of the Ohio river," it was declared, "and since the coal strike has been settled it has been impossible to get these cars back on their systems for loading."

For a while the interstate commerce commission promulgated a general order No. 23, whereby coal cars were not allowed to go beyond the first coal mine where they could be loaded, with the result that cars that nominally belong to this territory have been held to supply the mines in the central and eastern section of the country; and it has not been possible, although every effort has been made by the operating companies and the railroads, to get these cars returned.

Disregard Southeast. "It would appear from an observation without knowledge, that the policy of the national fuel administration is, to protect and get a sufficient supply of coal to points in the north, east and northwest and let the southeast take care of itself in the failure to give sufficient cars to take care of the problems of supply."

"As dealers we cannot understand why it is that the fuel administration is getting the price of coal down in the north, east and giving, according to reports, a far more satisfactory car supply to that territory than in the south, with an inadequate car supply, and it is our belief that if condemnation of the coal dealers and coal mines were stopped and instead some effort made to remedy the situation with the railroads and hammer at the real problems, thereby protecting the southern market, the purpose in view could be accomplished; that is, the reduction in the price of coal; otherwise, this committee appointed by the retail coal merchants at your request, unfortunately, will have to report that the price is reduced at the mines, but that the cost of retail coal to the consumer will have to be advanced.

"From this statement of facts we believe that you will realize that the problem is entirely a problem of transportation, and that if it would be possible to persuade the Washington fuel administration to take active steps to relieve this situation in the southeast, the price of coal would be reduced."

Dealers Lose Money. The committee also declares that Atlanta retail coal dealers are operating on a basis that does not allow them a profit, but has shown a loss for them throughout the year.

"This may sound to the uninitiated as unreasonable," it is added, "but we trust that by the time the presidential coal commission makes its report the public will be sufficiently enlightened on the problem of the trade to be fairer in their judgment."

"The citizens of Atlanta can count on the retail coal merchants endeavoring to co-operate to the fullest extent in extending to the people of Atlanta service and price of coal that will be commensurate with the cost of doing business. At the same time, the coal dealers of Atlanta desire to ask of the public a kinder consideration in the problems that confront them, and that the city government deal with them in the spirit of fairness by a protection of their business, such as has been granted to all other lines of business in the city with the exception of the coal trade."

lies of seventy ministers who had died in the total sum of $26,453.

New Officers Elected. New officers elected for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: Rev. A. J. Sears, of Hogsansville, president; Dr. E. F. Dempsey, vice-president, and Rev. W. T. Hunnicutt, secretary-treasurer.

The two Atlanta districts will be in the very forefront of district reports at the opening day's sitting of the current year's session of the North Georgia conference, which begins this morning at Wesley Memorial church. Both of the Atlanta districts have had a year of very fine progress in every phase of church enterprise, it is learned.

After the opening exercises, which will be conducted by Bishop William Pelton Murray, the conference will enter into organization, and the 12 presiding elders will be called upon to make reports of their districts.

Rev. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., D. D., of the North Atlanta district, will report more than 2,500 accessions to the churches under his care, with revival fires burning in every church in the district. The Center Street church has had an unusually good revival, receiving 113 new converts. Each church in the district has had an increase in membership.

Sunday School Work. Dr. LaPrade states that Sunday school work in the North Atlanta district has made wonderful progress, due to introduction of modern methods, teacher training and improved equipment. Epworth leagues also have increased in number until now there is not a church without a league of young Christian workers.

Payments on the centenary and Christian education pledges in that district have been almost fully paid for the year, while benevolent assessments will be paid to the amount of 40 per cent of the total askings. During the year salaries of pastors in the North Atlanta section have been increased in the sum of $2,000.

Dr. LaPrade will report large sums of money spent for new church structures. At Grace church a $60,000 church auditorium is nearing completion, while at St. Mark's church a $50,000 plot of ground has been bought for erection of a Sunday school annex. The Pettie Memorial church, which is under construction, will cost $50,000, and the Sunday school building at the First church, Decatur, will cost $30,000.

Rev. J. H. Eakes, D. D., presiding elder of the South Atlanta district, will likewise report advancements in all parts of church work in his district. He will report 1,800 accessions to churches in the district. Many very fine revival meetings have been held in the South Atlanta district, especially at St. Paul's, Park Street and Martha Branhram Memorial churches. Each one of the three named received from 125 to 150 new converts. Sunday school growth in the district has also been highly acceptable, the Trinity, St. Paul's and Park Street schools having more than 1,200 members each. Epworth leagues for young people have increased in number and membership.

Much work has been done in the South Atlanta district in the constructive way. At St. Luke's church a new parsonage has been erected at a cost of $7,500, while workmen are now at the first unit of the great institutional church, which unit will cost $20,000.

The Stewart Avenue church, formerly known as Bonnie Brae, has been completed, and the old Walker Street church building has been sold, and the Whitehall Street Reformed church has been bought, and is now known as the Martha Branhram Memorial church. This sale and purchase required expenditure of considerable money.

Centenary Payments. The South Atlanta district, also, is well up with the payments on centenary and Christian education pledges, while at least 85 per cent of the heavy benevolent assessments are paid in. Dr. Eakes will report an increase in salaries for pastors in the sum of $3,500. Since the Women's Missionary society does not make a report to this annual conference, no definite information is at hand concerning the work of the women. In the past years the women have always done more than their pro-rata share in the church work, and it is safe to judge that they have been increasingly active this year, as the plan for the society this year is the most ambitious they have ever launched.

Names of the other ten presiding elders will be called at the opening session today, and incomplete reports from them indicate that each district has enjoyed victorious growth during the twelvemonth.

This conference is the tenth annual session to have been held here since the division of the old Georgia conference, and the fifty-sixth in its history. The session will last until next Monday night, with sittings each day. Afternoon will be devoted to report to this annual conference, services at Wesley Memorial for such members as are not engaged on board of different boards.

The program as far as has been announced is as follows:

Program of Wednesday. Wednesday morning the conference session. Wednesday afternoon, preaching services, the sermon to be delivered by some visiting bishop. Wednesday evening, anniversary of the Sunday school board, George M. Napier presiding. Dr. M. W. Brabham, of Nashville, representing the general Sunday school board, will deliver the address of the occasion.

Thursday morning, regular conference session. Afternoon, preaching by a visiting bishop. Evening, anniversary of board of education, with Dr. Fletcher Walton presiding. Drs. R. H. Bennett and Ed F. Cook, of Nashville, will deliver addresses.

Friday morning, conference session. Afternoon, address by Bishop Murray, possibly, representing the church extension work. Evening session, anniversary of the board of missions, with Bishop W. B. Beauchamp as speaker of the hour.

Saturday morning, conference session. Afternoon, fiftieth anniversary of the class joining the conference in 1872. Members of that class still living and within the bounds of this conference will be present and take part in the program are: Dr. W. H. LaPrade, Sr., Rev. John H. Mashburn, Rev. Marion L. Underwood and Rev. Clement C. Cary. The late Rev. Sam P. Jones was also a member of that class. Three other members still live, but are in other conferences and will not be present. Saturday evening, Epworth league anniversary.

Sunday Love Feast. Sunday morning, love feast, followed by sermon by Bishop Murray and address by some visiting bishop. Memorial services in honor of the men who have died during the year. Sunday evening, sermon, followed by ordination of elders.

Monday morning, conference session. Afternoon, final session, concluding with the reading of the new appointments for the preachers. Ladies of Wesley Memorial church are conducting a first-class lunch room in the church basement entrance on Auburn avenue, and are using the profits to help pay for the new $25,000 pipe organ just installed in the church.

Rev. Nath Thompson, of Norcross, is showing the conference members that he is really in earnest in proposing that a number of preachers join him in sleeping in the basketball court in the church basement. On Tuesday he had the court cleared and installed 25 cots. He says he is sure of that money—patronage, and will take the money thus saved from hotel bills and apply it to the fund for superannuated homes.

Manager's Fare More. Hon. John A. Maber, Atlanta capitalist and leading Methodist layman, chairman of the conference committee on entertainment, states that the laymen of this conference will ask permission to pay railroad fares in the sum of 3 cents per mile each way for all ministers coming to conference. He pleads that the preachers will not oppose this movement of the laymen.

Rev. W. P. King, retiring editor of The Wesleyan Christian Advocate at this conference, has been advocating that all churches put the church paper in the local church budget. He stated Tuesday that a good number of churches had done so, with inevitable profit to all concerned.

Among those from whom he had received letters indorsing the idea and who state that the budget system for the paper is a profitable thing are: Rev. B. F. Mine, Tallapoosa; Rev. Grance.

W. W. Twigg, Lithonia; Rev. H. C. Emory, Dalton; Rev. W. B. Purcell, Shady Dale; Rev. J. M. Aswell, Eatonton; Rev. Herbert Ethridge, Sparks; Rev. Lucien Roper and H. T. Quillian, layman, of Southwest La.

Citizens Invited to Discuss
New Ordinance at Friday Meeting.

Important features of a new traffic ordinance were agreed upon Tuesday morning at the fourth meeting of the special committee of twelve, and a public hearing was set for next Friday morning at 10 o'clock, when a general discussion by citizens of the proposed changes is invited.

Among the recommendations agreed upon are the following:

Erection of thirty-two safety islands on the downtown streets to serve as landing platforms for street car passengers and safety zones for pedestrians crossing streets.

To raise speed limit to 15 miles in the congested area, 20-mile speed limit within the fire limits and a 25-mile speed limit outside of the fire limits. This resolution was introduced by Councilman J. C. Murphy.

To require parallel parking on all streets except Marietta and Wall.

To designate James, Fayette and Poplar streets as non-parking areas at all times.

To call on council to enforce the ordinance requiring that sidewalks be kept clear of all obstructions.

To prohibit left turns from James street into Peachtree.

To request Georgia Railway and Power company to re-route Marietta, Ga., cars so as to keep them off of Forsyth street. To ask that pedestrian crossing from the Flat Iron building to the Piedmont hotel be abolished.

Councilman Edgar Watkins is chairman of the committee.

PARENT-TEACHER GROUP TO STUDY AMERICAN LAWS

The American citizenship committee of the Parent-Teacher association held the first of a series of class meetings Tuesday morning at city hall. Dr. Marion McH. Hull addressed the members.

During the ensuing year the class will study law, beginning with physical law and continuing through civil law to the highest conception of law. Dr. McH. Hull spoke Tuesday on physical law.

Principal speakers at the next meeting, when Atlanta's municipal laws will be the topic of discussion, will be Mayor Key and Mrs. R. L. Turman. The meeting will be held the first Tuesday in December in the council chamber at city hall.

Father and Son Luncheon Held At Rotary Club

More Than 100 Sons Are Guests of Dads at Annual Affair.

More than 100 sons were guests of their fathers at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary club Tuesday afternoon in the Capital City club.

It was the fourth annual "fathers and sons" day with the Atlanta Rotarians and was declared to be the most successful of any previous similar event fostered by the club. Boys whose ages ranged from six years to 40 years were present, all proudly taking advantage of their "dads" invitation to be present.

Henry Nelson, chairman of the program committee, explained the principles of Rotary to the boys and young men, calling upon them to exemplify these principles in their every day lives. Mr. Nelson declared that it was not necessary to be a member of a Rotary club to emulate the principles of the organization but that all members were recognized everywhere for their observance of the golden rule in their every day life.

The Rotary band, composed of boys who were provided with instruments and training by the Atlanta Rotary club, played an exceptional musical program. Julian V. Boehm, president of the local Civilian club, appeared on the program and gave a number of sleight of hand tricks.

Talks were made by boys who were asked by W. M. Brownlee, president of the club, what they thought of their "dads." Mr. Brownlee was followed in a short address by George Forrester, who described the attributes of a good Rotarian and extended a greeting to the visitors in behalf of the club.

A. H. Waldon Elected.

A. H. Waldon was elected president of the Men's club of All Saints church at a meeting of the club held Monday evening at Eggleston hall. Other officers elected were James C. Williams, first vice president; H. A. Maier, second vice president; H. Nelson Morey, secretary and treasurer.

Woman Principal In Love Tangle, Atlanta Bound

Mrs. Frederick Pace Will Be Returned to Answer
Statutory Charge.

Mrs. Frederick Pace, wealthy New York apartment house owner, held in the Jacksonville, Fla., jail following her arrest Sunday on a Fulton county indictment charging a statutory offense, will arrive in Atlanta Wednesday night or Thursday morning, it was announced Tuesday.

City Detective A. G. Stone, of the Atlanta bureau, left Monday night for the Florida city to bring the prisoner to Atlanta.

Lynwood B. Bright, arrested in Macon Sunday on a similar charge, gave bond for his appearance in the Fulton county court, according to a message received by James I. Lowery, sheriff of Fulton county.

The charges against both were made by Mrs. Bright. In addition to the criminal action, civil suit was brought by Mrs. Bright against Mrs. Pace, charging her with the alienation of her husband's affections. The case is pending. Bright, on the other hand, has started action for a divorce and charges his wife with desertion.

A counter action, it was stated, will be filed against Bright by his wife. Bright is scheduled to appear in the Bibb county court at a hearing involving the will of his father. He is seeking to break the will, it is said, because of certain properties bequeathed to Mrs. Pace by her father.

The act upon which the Fulton county indictment is based is alleged to have been committed at the Piedmont hotel. Several letters written to Bright by Mrs. Pace referring to it are alleged to the incident have been revealed.

WOMAN INJURED IN STREET CAR ACCIDENT, DIES

Mrs. Annie E. Cone, 75, died at St. Joseph's infirmary Tuesday morning from injuries received when she was struck by a street car late Monday afternoon on the corner of First and Cottage Grove avenues in East Lake. Her skull was fractured.

Mrs. Cone, who lived at 42 First avenue, was hurrying to catch a trolley car when the accident happened. Apparently miscalculating the distance she crossed in the path of the car which, it was said, was moving at a brisk rate of speed on a down grade.

W. B. Cone, son of Mrs. Cone, said he was told by eye-witnesses that the motorman and conductor were engaged in conversation when the accident happened. It is alleged that the motorman was talking to the conductor about the part of the motorman, Mr. Cone declared.

Mrs. Cone is survived by W. B. and O. A. Cone, of Atlanta, and two daughters, Miss Ina Cone, and Mrs. M. Walter Price, of Washington, D. C. A. W. Price and Lowndes in charge.

Other new ideas

Modern research also discovered two other essentials, and Pepsodent fulfills them.

It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to constantly neutralize the acids which cause decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in saliva. That is there to digest deposits on teeth which make otherwise ferment and form acids.

Thus Pepsodent, twice daily, gives manifold power to Nature's great tooth-protecting agents in the mouth.

New beauty comes

Users of Pepsodent gain new beauty, new charm. You see that everywhere. Note how many pretty teeth show — teeth which were once concealed. No woman, no man, who once sees these results will ever go without them.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. This test will be a delightful revelation. It will point the way, for you and yours, to life-long benefits. Cut out the coupon so you won't forget.

The Mistake That millions have corrected

As most folks know, brushing teeth in old ways proved most disappointing. Teeth still discolored, still decayed. Beautiful teeth were seen less often than today. Tooth troubles came to 49 in 50.

Millions of people, nearly all the world over, have found a better method. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now show one of the results.

All due to film

Most cloudy teeth and most tooth troubles are now traced to film. Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats film. So, despite all brushing, very few escaped those film-caused troubles.

Two new methods

Then dental science, after long research, found two film combatants. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved those methods efficient. Then leading dentists everywhere began to advise their use.

A new-type tooth paste was created, based on modern research. The name is Pepsodent. Then these two film combatants were embodied in it for daily application.

Ray-O-Lite

French Focusing Spotlight

Throws a RAY-O-LITE a City Block

THINK of a flashlight that will throw a brilliant spot ten feet in diameter a city block, and in five seconds convert it into an electric reading candle by simply removing entire head of the barrel!

This NEW Ray-O-Lite spotlight concentrates a brilliant white light on most any object 300 to 400 feet away, then with one turn of the end-cap to the left you will have just an ordinary flashlight. Then remove the entire head from the barrel, turn your switch on, stand the barrel erect, and you will have a table reading lamp.

For emergency, one extra lamp is stored safely away INSIDE the bottom end-cap, protected by a steel case. A "Shock Absorber" at the base of the lamp in the head of the barrel prevents breakage when accidentally dropped or submitted to other unusual jars.

This Ray-O-Lite spotlight is guaranteed to give better service under comparable conditions than any other flashlight intended for similar use. Money back if you are not absolutely satisfied.

Atlanta Music Festival Association Secure Big Event for Music Lovers.

Officers of the Atlanta Music Festival association are convinced that they are securing for music lovers of Atlanta one of the most unique and entertaining musical events ever brought to this country in the Ukrainian National chorus, which comes to the Auditorium for a single performance on the night of Wednesday, November 29.

This company of forty or more singers, selected from the best of Russia's vocal art, has been called the "human symphony orchestra," a unique Russian musical organization, and is being brought to this country by Max Rabinoff, former impresario of the Boston Grand Opera company, who came into special prominence when he included Pavlova and her Ballet Russe in grand opera and took them on a tour of the United States and Canada.

The chorus is said to have reached a point well nigh perfect under the exceptional training of its Cossack conductor, Alexander Koshetz, who is described as being the "most indefatigable, possessed of incomparable faith and love for their religious parable faith and music." Koshetz, in addition to being an eminent conductor, is a well known composer of Russian music in his native country of Ukraine, formerly called Little Russia. He is professor of choral singing in various colleges and conservatories in the city of Kiev, and his knowledge of this art is perhaps unequalled in European music circles.

The program presented by the chorus consists largely of Russian music by the best Russian composers, including also the folk music of Ukraine. Conductor Koshetz, who has been in the chorus since its organization in 1918, has made a life work of collecting unpublished melodies of Ukrainian folklore, and many of his arrangements are used in the program.

The solo work of the concert will be in the hands of Mile. Oda Slobodskaja, one of the greatest of Russian sopranos, formerly of the imperial grand opera of Petrograd.

The seat sale begins Wednesday, November 15, one week from today, at Cable hall, and one week in advance of the concert which will be on November 29. The price of tickets will be $2 for arena and box seats; $1.50 in the dress circle and $1 in the balcony. These prices are lower than have been charged at any other past where the Ukrainian chorus has sung. The maximum charge having been $3. It was through the influence of Colonel Peal, president of the Atlanta Music Festival association, that these prices were secured, because he wanted as many as possible to hear the chorus and the large seating capacity of the Auditorium, and thus make a greater financial success.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS ARRANGES OPOSSUM HUNT

An opossum hunt is planned for Friday night, November 17, to head a series of activities of the Wesley class of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church, with a view of increasing attendance. A number of guests will accompany the members of the class and the party will leave from the church at 7:30 o'clock.

A committee of young men has been appointed to arrange the details and provide a sack of opossums to turn loose in case the hounds fail to find any of the animals that later are scheduled to occupy a place, alongside of sweet potatoes, on the menu.

Prominent Atlantans have agreed to make fifteen minute talks each Sunday to the class. The series will begin with a talk by Eugene Black, November 19. The following Sunday Granville McWhorter will be present and speak. Superintendent Willis A. Sutton and others are on the list to speak at subsequent Sunday mornings. Mrs. M. L. Kennerly is teacher.

When Home Products Are Just as Good as Can Be Made--

Buy 'Em at Home

With some people buying and using the things made away off yonder somewhere seems to be a sort of habit hard to get over.

They don't seem to think for a moment that just as good products are made right here at home—made by people who have invested millions of dollars in plants and equipment, and who give employment to thousands of home people.

When home products are just as good as those that come from afar off—when they can be secured fresh and good, and cost no more—isn't it worth a whole lot to your home community to keep your money at home—keep it where it will help to develop your home section?

There is no reason why you shouldn't patronize home industry, when that patronage buys for you the best products, at no greater cost, and helps to keep thousands of home people employed.

Purpose of Education Is Sutton's Subject In Berry School Talk

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools of Atlanta, spoke recently in the Mount Berry church on "The Purpose of Education."

"The purpose of education is to discover, to develop, to direct, to perfect and to utilize all the resources of every human being and the forces of nature about us," he said. "I believe that if I teach this to Berry I shall, in a measure, teach it to all of Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee and the Carolinas."

As a preface to his talk Mr. Sutton spoke most enthusiastically of Berry. "This is the most perfect environment I have ever known," he said. "Here the practical and the aesthetic are perfectly blended."

DYERS AND CLEANERS PLAN TO COME HERE

Letters expressing intention of attending the annual convention of the Master Dyers and Cleaners, scheduled in Atlanta for February 5 to 9, would indicate that several thousand leaders of this industry will be in Atlanta at the time of the meeting, it was announced from the convention bureau Tuesday.

Every month several thousand pieces of literature on the attractions in Atlanta are mailed by the bureau to dyers throughout the country, and at present the total of these communications has reached almost 50,000.

The regular luncheon meeting of the Lions' club, scheduled for Tuesday, but postponed because of the assembly room being in use by the workers in the chamber of commerce campaign, will be held Tuesday. Plans for expanding the membership of the club will be given attention in the report of the membership committee which has been investigating the question.

It was announced that the next luncheon meeting would be on Tuesday of next week, as formerly arranged.

OFFICE BUILDING PLANS COMPLETED

Atlanta Builders' Exchange to Finance Ten-story Structure on Houston Street.

Final plans for the erection in Atlanta of a ten-story office building on Houston street, between North Pryor and Ivy streets, which will represent an investment of approximately $500,000, were completed by the Atlanta Builders' Exchange corporation at a meeting in the pine room of the Hotel Ansley Tuesday at noon. The new structure will be of concrete and pressed brick, with all modern improvements, insuring it fireproof.

Work will begin some time in January and the building will be completed and ready for occupancy by the middle of the year, it was stated. The building will occupy a lot fronting 103 feet on Houston street and running back 100 feet to the DeGue property. It is 150 feet from the northeast corner of Houston and North Pryor streets.

To House Exchange.

The Atlanta Builders' Exchange corporation, which was organized recently, consists of representative builders, contractors, architects and kindred enterprises in Atlanta. The main object of erecting the new ten-story office building is to centralize all allied interests in the building industry into one office structure.

When completed the entire second floor of the skyscraper will be devoted to use as headquarters of the exchange. There will be sufficient floor space for the exchange to provide for a secretary's office, in addition to plan rooms, committee rooms, lounge and assembly rooms, besides enough rentable space for desks and exhibits of members, it was stated.

While the architect's drawing of the new building has not been completed, it is planned to utilize part of the first floor for a large restaurant, which will be operated in conjunction with the exchange in holding dinners and luncheons in the various assembly rooms.

The balance of the building, which will consist of approximately 120 offices, will be designed especially for members of the exchange and all allied interests in the building business, it was stated.

Stock Is Paid In.

At the meeting the entire capital stock of $150,000 was paid into the treasury and the charter for the new corporation was accepted and read to members by Attorney Philip Alston, who is counsel for the exchange.

Clemency Pleas Before Governor In Three Cases

Laurens Citizens Appear Before Governor in Behalf of Wife Slayer.

In an effort to save the life of Marshall Bass, a young white man of Laurens county, condemned to execution for the murder of his wife, a delegation of citizens from that county will appear before Governor Thomas W. The solicitor-general of the Laurens superior court will oppose the petition.

Governor Hardwick Tuesday granted a respite of 60 days to Frank Jones, a Savannah negro, who was to have been executed Friday for killing another negro. Chatham county officials asked that the respite be given because the negro recently suffered a stroke of paralysis in a serious condition.

The governor heard a petition of attorneys for Genus Coffield, a negro of Fayette county, asking that the death sentence imposed on Coffield for stabbing his nephew be commuted to life imprisonment.

Chance of Frost Goes Glimmering In Damp Clouds

Atlanta Is Wettest Town in Georgia Election Day, Says Weatherman.

Possibilities of frost for Atlanta Thursday morning were seen to fade Tuesday as reports from the northwestern weather stations were received at the local weather bureau office. It is hardly possible now, says C. E. von Herrmann, meteorologist, that we will have frost Thursday, although one is likely to strike the northern part of the state.

Disturbances which Monday indicated the possibility of frost for Atlanta, the cold weather coming from the northwest, were said to have acted differently from what had been expected, and this accounts for the statement that most likely there will be no frost Thursday.

Rain during the early hours of Tuesday and throughout the day in intermittent mists, resulted in almost an inch total precipitation. Cloudy weather with lower temperatures was predicted for Wednesday, with cooler weather for the latter part of the week.

Atlanta received more rain Tuesday than almost every other Georgia point, it was stated at the weather office, and all the southern part of the state enjoyed fair weather. It is expected that the rain belt will move southward Wednesday, probably resulting in giving the farmers of south Georgia a needed rainy season.

PICKPOCKET SUSPECT HELD BY AUTHORITIES

Suspected of being a pickpocket and a clever forger, a man who gave his name as A. C. Lovejoy is being held by the Atlanta authorities.

The man was arrested Monday by Detectives Wiley and Cason, upon information and a description furnished by Philadelphia and Cincinnati police authorities. Lovejoy's photograph and finger print classifications were mailed to the northern police Tuesday.

POULTRY FANCIERS START CAMPAIGN AGAINST THIEVES

The season is open on chicken thieves! Poultry fanciers have risen in righteous wrath, following wholesale raids on numerous henneries of late, have armed themselves with every conceivable kind of firearm and stand ready to repulse the nocturnal pillagers of their feathered flocks.

Decatur is the center of operations for the raiders. Monday, Bradford Byrd, who lives on Mead road, told the Decatur authorities thieves stole 94 of his chickens and hauled them away in a truck.

Although the police have posted additional sentries in the residential section where chicken coops are the most numerous, they have failed to entirely thwart the activities of thieves.

Many residents have purchased ferocious watch dogs to supplement the efforts of the police.

According to Francois Marshall, former minister of finance, France paid her war debt to the United States with the genius of her generals, and therefore owes nothing.

LOUISIANA IS BEATEN 25-0

New York, November 7.—Rutgers' heavyweight eleven ran through the Louisiana State university team here this afternoon in the final period, winning 25 to 0.

The New Brunswick college was represented by substitutes in the first period and Louisiana outplayed the northerners. When Coach Sanford began to send in the varsity regulars in relays of from three to six at a time, the situation changed quickly.

Louisiana, despite its plucky and hard line defense, was unable to hold Rutgers, which plowed through steadily with an occasional forward pass injected to keep Louisiana's secondary defense from coming in to brace the line. Although outplayed, the visitors showed some excellent tackling and end running, especially Halfback Helm, who was an outstanding figure both on offense and defense. Malone was the star for Rutgers, his forward passing and 80-yard run for a touchdown after catching a punt being the thrilling features of an otherwise drab game played in mist and rain. Numerous penalties were imposed on both teams, the total on both teams aggregating over 200 yards.

Rutgers led Louisiana 7 to 0 at the close of the first half. The southerners held their northern rivals even in the first period and until late in the second session. At this point Rutgers received a punt at midfield and before the teams could line up Coach Sanford of Rutgers sent eight varsity players into the line and backfield, replacing the subs who had started the game for Rutgers. Under the impetus of the new and heavier combination the New Brunswick eleven quickly smashed through Louisiana in a series of line plunges half the length of the field for a touchdown. Moore, who had replaced Clark, scored the touchdown, and Benkert, who replaced Anderson, kicked goal.

Lack Scoring Punch.

Previous to the changes in the Rutgers team Louisiana easily held its own in the play, but appeared to lack a scoring punch in the several opportunities offered to the southerners. Helm, of the Louisiana backfield, made several long and brilliant runs and played a strong defensive game, breaking up several Rutgers runs. Rutgers scored three additional touchdowns in the second half of the game, the weight of the New Brunswick combination gradually wearing down the Louisiana players. In the third period the southerners fumbled on their 35-yard line and Rutgers recovering opened a series of line plunges which ended with Ozias scoring. Noble's try for goal was blocked.

In the closing period a forward pass, Malone to Dickinson, from Rutgers' 45-yard line, put the ball with in 15 yards of the Louisiana goal and four plunges carried the ball over in Malone's possession. A few moments later the same player caught a punt on his own 20-yard line and ran 80 yards for the final touchdown, aided by excellent interference from Benkert. Malone's two tries for goals were blocked, leaving the final score: Rutgers, 25; Louisiana, 0.

McGraw Selects All-National Team Favors Old-Timers in Selection

New York, November 7.—There were greater baseball players in the first of the twenty years that John J. McGraw has been manager of the New York Giants than in the latter days of his service, the Little Napoleon declares in his most recent contribution to the eternal discussion of "who are the greatest players in the history of the game?"

In confirmation of his opinion—and scarcely anyone will question the ability of McGraw to rate the National league players of the last two decades—the manager of the Giants has selected an all-star team of men who were the uniforms of the older league and of the twenty-one he picks, including substitutes, only nine were on major league diamonds last season.

Twelve of the men he rates as the greatest at their positions that the league has known have passed out, and of the nine remaining, the majority have seen their best years and soon will be gone. Indeed, several of them have spent over a decade in the big circuit.

Frank Chance, once the peerless leader of the Cubs, has no competition in McGraw's acquaintance for first base. Chance was of the "fighting type," says McGraw, like a close ball game and blamed only himself when he couldn't dig the other fellows' wild career was from 1901 to 1914.

Rogers Hornsby, with the St. Louis Cardinals since 1915, is the greatest second baseman of all times, McGraw thinks. His batting is so near perfect that his brilliant defense play is obscured.

Wagner Best at Short. "Honus Wagner, who passed off the diamond in 1917, like Chance, has absolutely no competition for shortstop in McGraw's team. 'I used to love to play the Pirates just to go against Wagner, for it was as much of a treat to me as the fans to see him play,' is McGraw's comment.

Dave Bancroft, now captain of the Giants, and Frankie Frisch, the former Yankee, are McGraw's substitute infield selections. "They would be on my regular team but for Wagner and Hornsby," he says.

Going back ten years McGraw draws Fred Clarke for left field. The greatest of all, pronounced McGraw, "He did everything a winning ball player needs. It is too bad that Fred couldn't turn over his stuff when he retired."

Eddie Roth, now of the Cincinnati Reds, gets the calls for center field because he is a "straight-ahead dangerous hitter, covers both left and right fields for drives and doesn't mismanage. I guess Mike Donlin has to set the call for right field," McGraw sums up. "Mike always liked a tough series and the best pitcher the other fellow had." Donlin's last year was 1912.

George Burns, now with Cincinnati and for ten years on the Giants, and Jimmy Sheppard, one of the old guard, are the substitute outfielders. Roger

DO YOU WANT A GOOD POSITION?

THIS IS INTERESTING in view of the failure of many brilliant players to impart to other players the knowledge of the game they have shown during their college careers.

DICKINSON'S MOST notable achievement to date is its 27 to 7 victory over Swarthmore. Second to this in importance is its victory over Franklin and Marshall, to the tune of 13 to 7. Both of these teams are comparatively formidable opponents.

KILLINGER ACCEPTED the coaching berth at Dickinson mainly to see what he could do as a coach. In so doing he passed up a juicy offer to promote a professional team in the west.

KILLINGER'S CONTINUED success in football is a source of joy to Harrisburg, Pa., his home town. He was born September 13, 1888, at Harrisburg, Technical High that he gained his early rep as a player. He served time in his father's hardware shop after he left the technical institution before he made up his mind that a higher education—and more opportunities to play football—were necessary.

HE WENT TO Penn State. He divided his athletic moments among all sports—baseball, track, swimming and basketball as well as the grid game. His wonderful generalship in handling a grid team, in addition to his brilliant running and all-around playing won him national attention at the Pennsylvania college.

FEMININE GOLFERS COLUMN

The first day of match play in the Constitution's golf tournament that is being played over the Brookhaven Country Club golf course was postponed until today on account of rain. However, this rain should improve the fairways and smooth out the greens wonderfully, and if the fair golfers are greeted with sunshine this morning we predict some very fine golf and some very close matches.

Our latest report from the weather man is very encouraging. He promises a little cooler weather and slightly cloudy. This will be encouraging enough to bring out the golfers.

We find a majority of the feminine golfers in Atlanta refuse to allow their bag of sticks to rust during the winter for lack of use and are now forming clubs to keep up their golf during the winter season.

A number of interclub golf tournaments are being planned and a one-day invitational tournament is also under consideration. The one-day tournament will be called the "Monkey" tournament. The rules governing this particular tournament are very simple. You draw a club from your bag and you have to play the entire round with the same club.

Something New. A tournament of this kind is new in the south and as expressed by Mrs. Dozier Lowndes, southern and city champion, it will be loads of fun, and very interesting.

Match play will begin at 9 o'clock today. The second day of the Constitution handicap tournament in the clubhouse for the handsome trophies given by this standard southern newspaper, the finals to be played Friday morning.

Mrs. Thomas R. Paine, Mrs. H. L. Beck, Miss Rosalie Mayer and Miss L. B. O'Brien are the only women who have ever won the East Lake golf course Monday.

This is a column for the feminine golfers but we think the following story will be appreciated by our feminine golfers as well as the masculine followers of the famous pastime. Last week one of the male golfers wandered out to East Lake with a friend for a round of golf. They both hung up a very nice record. No. 1 and 2 and were stepped up to the top on No. 2. He laid down a perfect iron for a birdie two, an accomplishment that brings a thrill to the heart of every golfer.

After being complimented by his opponent the two golfers left the tee for the green when the villain appeared in the form of a bird dog who had been concealed in the bushes nearby and who had not been educated up to the finer points in golf. The villain saw a birdie and something to do with a bird and in regular bird dog fashion he pointed the ball then confiscated said ball. The last thing the golfer saw was a streak down the road. It was the bird dog disappearing in the distance with the golf ball in his mouth.

The question then came up: Was it a lost ball? It certainly was. Was it out of bounds? It couldn't be anywhere else. The only thing the villainy could do was to go back to the tee and drive another ball, which he did. Later we learned this same golfer was trying to buy a dog to hunt bird dogs. Can you blame him?

STAR AS A COACH.

THIS IS INTERESTING in view of the failure of many brilliant players to impart to other players the knowledge of the game they have shown during their college careers.

DICKINSON'S MOST notable achievement to date is its 27 to 7 victory over Swarthmore. Second to this in importance is its victory over Franklin and Marshall, to the tune of 13 to 7. Both of these teams are comparatively formidable opponents.

KILLINGER ACCEPTED the coaching berth at Dickinson mainly to see what he could do as a coach. In so doing he passed up a juicy offer to promote a professional team in the west.

KILLINGER'S CONTINUED success in football is a source of joy to Harrisburg, Pa., his home town. He was born September 13, 1888, at Harrisburg, Technical High that he gained his early rep as a player. He served time in his father's hardware shop after he left the technical institution before he made up his mind that a higher education—and more opportunities to play football—were necessary.

HE WENT TO Penn State. He divided his athletic moments among all sports—baseball, track, swimming and basketball as well as the grid game. His wonderful generalship in handling a grid team, in addition to his brilliant running and all-around playing won him national attention at the Pennsylvania college.

TRACK STARS WIN TROPHIES

BY HERMAN D. HANCOCK.

Announcement came from the Emory University Athletic association that the hare and hound races which have been running for a period of several weeks have come to a close. These races have been sponsored by the association and have been indorsed by every organization on the campus. The primary purpose of the races was to find men to uphold the banner of the Blue and Gold team in both the cross-country races, which take place at the university December 9, and also for the spring track meet, which takes place next May.

The races have been the most successful ever conducted by the association. There was an average of more than a hundred men out for the runs every afternoon and the association feels well paid for the expenditure which it made to provide the cups and prizes which are to go to the winners.

One loving cup is given to the company in the R. O. T. C. which makes the highest percentage during the entire time the races continue, another to the fraternity which makes the highest average, and the third to the literary society which has the highest percentage. The cups are awarded on a percentage basis depending on the number enrolled in the organization.

Company "B" Wins. The R. O. T. C. cup was won by Company "B," of which Charles H. Deterly is captain. Company D came second with Company C third.

The fraternity cup was awarded to the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity with the Phi Delta Theta second. Phi Gamma literary society was winner of the literary society competition.

Six individual medals are awarded on a point basis to the six men who finished best during the entire season. They go to J. B. Mitchell, W. P. Peterson, W. A. Crow, E. L. Graydon, A. D. Williams and H. G. Byrd.

Track Southerners keeping the training of his varsity defenders of the Southern Intercollegiate Methodist road race title to the highest club, and he intends to have the Hillbilly take the major end of the score when the testing time for the Blue and Gold men comes on December 9.

Most of the winners of the individual prizes in the hare and hound contests are new men at Emory and even though the varsity squad system, Stokes and Harper, the two first place men in the last road race, Coach Snathers thinks that his men will be ready to take the south's best on the day of the meet.

AMERICAN PUGILIST BEATS GERMAN CHAMP

Berlin, November 7.—(By The Associated Press.)—Samson Koerner, American heavyweight pugilist, tonight scored a technical knockout over Hans Breitenstrater, heavyweight champion of Germany, in the eighth round of what was to have been a 15-round bout. The American won a purse and contributions aggregating nearly 1,000,000 marks.

Koerner was cheered by the 10,000 spectators when he gave Breitenstrater one-half of his winnings, the referee at first having expressed some doubt whether the final blow, which sent the German out of the ring and almost into the lap of Georges Carpentier, was fair.

Carpentier, who stopped over in Berlin for the fight on his way back to France from a business trip to Riga, gave Koerner 100,000 marks of the contribution.

"Strangler" Lewis Wins. Nashville, Tenn., November 7.—Ed ("Strangler") Lewis, heavyweight wrestling champion, defended his title last night against Andrew Vassier, winning the first fall in 54 minutes and being awarded the second on a foul, Vassier being credited with using an illegal straight hold.

GIBBONS DRAWS LAY-OFF IN MINN.

St. Paul, Minn., November 7.—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight boxer, and Mike Collins, Minneapolis promoter, who have been managing a string of boxers, have been temporarily barred from staging bouts by the state boxing commission, it became known today.

Johnny O'Donnell, Mark Moore, Bill Stearns, boxers, also have been barred pending an investigation by the commission of reports of an alleged illegally staged fight card at Albert Lea last Friday night.

If Gibbons and Collins are found guilty of the charges they may be kept from putting on bouts in Minnesota for two years and the others would be subject to fines.

Gibbons denied any connection with the Albert Lea affair.

SALLY'S ALLEY'S PURSES MORE THAN MAN O' WAR

Baltimore, Md., November 7.—When Sally's Alley, Wilmer Sharpe Kliner's crack 2-year-old filly, won the second division of the Pimlico turfity here last Saturday, she brought her total winnings for the year to $87,347. Her share of the futurity was $41,015.

This figure far exceeds the mark set by Man O' War as a 2-year-old. The Glen Fiddle champion won $33,325 in his first year on the turf.

The mutuels paid: Captain Alcock, $15.40; $5.00; $2.50. Exodus, $3.80; $2.40. Oceanic, $2.30.

Captain Alcock won in a driving finish with Exodus, after Oceanic, who had set the pace to within 40 yards of the wire, faltered and lost the rich prize, finishing third.

Princeton Is Fighting Team, But Is Not Steady; Michigan, Wisconsin, Good

Penn State Feeling More and More Great Need of Glenn Killinger's Drive in Backfield—California Draws Away.

BY WALTER CAMP.

New York, November 7.—The football map today shows some modifications and kaleidoscopic changes as a result of recent games, but there have been no startling upsets in the last week. Nevertheless the recent play of the leading teams showed some most enlightening features.

Princeton is a brilliant fighting team, but it is not steady, and is quite vulnerable at times. Harvard is improving. Better coordination is apparent among the Crimson players, and like Yale, the team has a host of star backfield men. In fact, Harvard is rather embarrassed by a plethora of riches in this respect as some of these stars must preface rest on the side lines.

Yale's offense is broadening out, but the Blue has not stepped up the holes to forward pass attacks. Major Daly is knitting the Army players together and the Navy's early lead over the Cadets is disappearing. The game did show, however, why Pennsylvania was able to win over the Middies the week previous. Penn State without Killinger lacks drive and punch.

Many Upsets.

Alabama's victory over Pennsylvania was one of the real upsets of the week-end. Nebraska's invasion of the east met a sharp and decisive setback at the hands of Syracuse. The analysis of the great football played at the Polo grounds Saturday reflects almost as much credit on Lafayette, the losers, as it does on Washington and Jefferson, the winners. The game was won by superior wit at the critical moment but the brand of football shown by each was the best seen this year.

Michigan and Wisconsin are gaining in the middle west and California is drawing away from competitors on the Pacific coast. In the south, Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Centre are gaining by comparison for Auburn had a hard battle putting Georgia out of the running.

The efforts of the rules committee to inject a new element into the try for point after touchdown would seem to have been fully justified and successful. The critics had agreed that the try for point probably always would be by the medium of a drop kick. Then along comes Washington and Jefferson and scores the winning point in the greatest and closest game of the season by entirely crossing Lafayette and putting over a new forward pass. The beauty of it was that it was a perfect piece of judgment. A clay field, so sticky that mud clogged his cleats had caused the Lafayette kicker to miss his goal earlier in the game, so Washington and Jefferson took no chances, but switched to the forward pass method.

Some great stars shone at the Polo grounds Saturday. Schwab, Lafayette's great guard, and Weiderquist, Washington and Jefferson's stalwart and brainy tackle, each showed line play at its height of perfection. The backfields fairly scintillated. Erickson, Brenkhart, Brennan, Bruner, Basista and Gasella all were fast and clever and dangerous men to their opponents. The kicking in general was good.

Yellow Jackets Taking No Chances On Injuries, With Georgetown Near Tech Team Sent Through Light Track Work Tuesday—Scrimmage Scheduled for Today.

BY JOHN STATON, (Tech's Left End).

Boy, pace the track team, for verily there is no sport in existence in which psychology plays more important role than in football. The mental attitude of the player is every bit as vital as his physical condition and technical perfection. There are countless instances where the better team has been beaten, because the mental attitude towards the game was other than it should be.

This season some vitally important games have been lost by a let down in spirit. Two flash at once to your mind, Navy-Pennsylvania, and the Penn-Alabama games. The Navy did not fear Penn and Penn defeated the Navy. It was the same story when Alabama crushed Penn napping, and put the skids to them.

As a contrast look at the Navy-Penn State game. Navy had been beaten when they should have won. They felt bad about it, made up their minds to come back, and make up the defeat. They did it. They won. Penn State took a good licking from a rejuvenated Navy.

To get nearer home, think of Tech in 1919. After losing to Washington and Lee, the team came back and beat the wonderful Georgetown team 35-0. And then about ten days later, cocky and confident, the Golden Tornado took a humiliating defeat from a team much the inferior of Georgetown.

But here's the whole point. Georgetown will shoot its all in the Tech game Saturday, for two reasons. First, they have been beaten three successive years by Tech. They are, at least, when they were supposed to come out on top. Three straight defeats and they have not had a sorry team in those three years. They have the best chance. With a team composed entirely of veterans, they will face the Yellow Jackets.

Second reason. They are in a row is something unusual for Georgetown. They have reached the crisis in their season. One of those games they should have won. Tech would have a better chance had Georgetown won that game. They feel bad about it and they want to come back. They realize there is no better way than to give us a good thrashing. When those Irishmen play the role of underdogs, they can play superb football. This game will probably be the most interesting and hardest fought game on the schedule.

INVITE DENBY TO BIG GAME

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has joined in with the army and marine football game here November 22, a success.

President W. O. Fouts and Secretary R. S. Barker have written Secretary Denby and General Pershing, inviting them to come to Atlanta for this game as guests of the chamber of commerce during their stay in the city.

The officials think Atlanta has been favored in the staging of this big game here and that it is a splendid advertisement for the city.

Numerous Ticket Requests. Much interest is being manifested both in Atlanta and throughout the state in this game. Calls for tickets are beginning to come in even before the borders of Georgia. The tickets which are now in the hands of the printer will be on sale at the usual places next week.

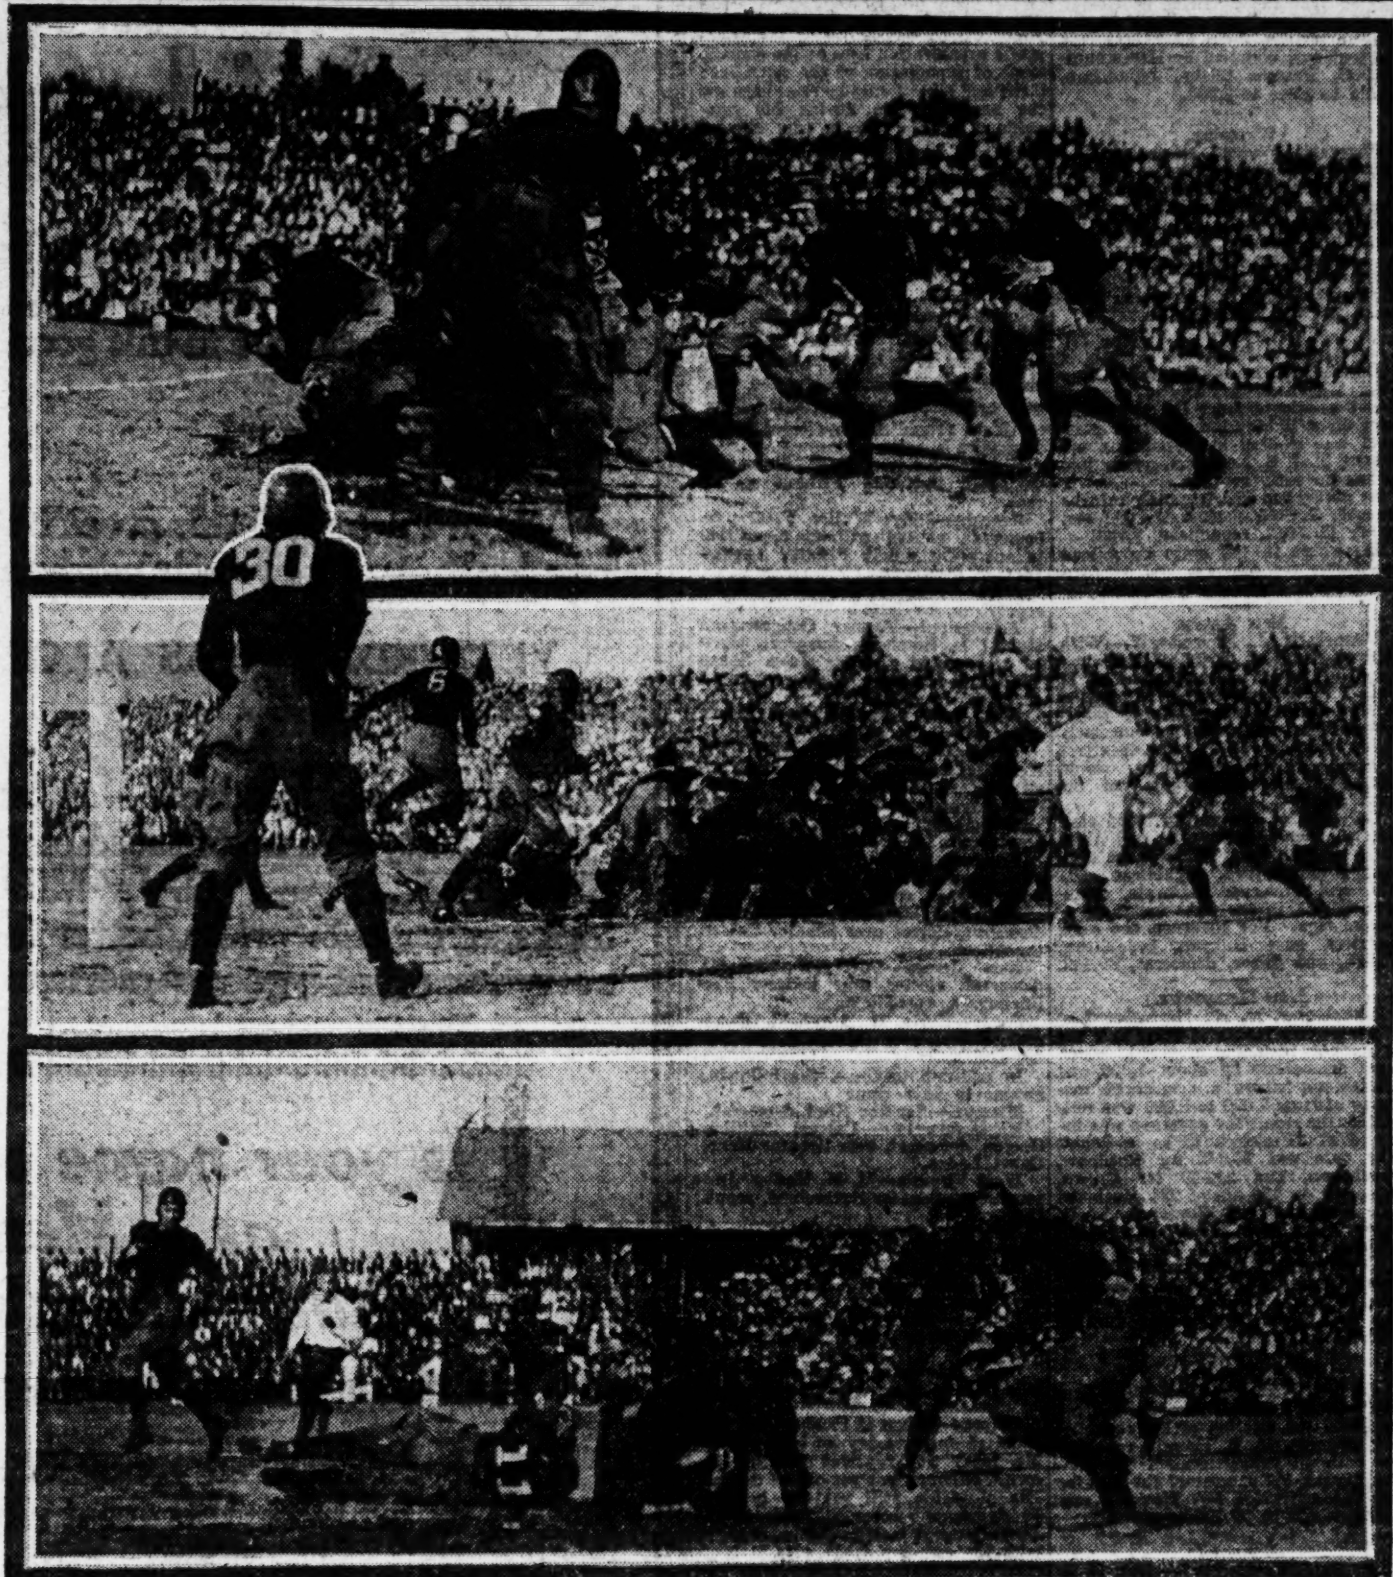

Both teams are being primed for this game and if ever the people of this vicinity saw two teams play football to win they will get the opportunity at this battle. For the army can lose to any other team, and it is all in the day's work, likewise, the marines can lose to anybody else—but to lose to the army would be terrible.

30,000 Witnessed Game.

At a game between these two branches of Uncle Sam's service last year in Baltimore nearly 30,000 people saw the game.

Mr. Barker also announced that the people of Atlanta would be asked to make this occasion a social event that would bring out Atlanta's well known hospitality, and that he would have courtesy cards for all Atlanta clubs and civic bodies for army, marine and navy officials visiting the game.

Action Snapped at Georgia-Auburn Game

Here are some of the feature plays in the recent Georgia-Auburn game at Columbus. Photographer Tye Sanders making the pictures. At the top, Dick Mulvihill, who proved to be one of Georgia's outstanding stars, was caught as he dived through the Tigers' line for a gain. The middle picture shows Ed Shirling attempting to carry the ball over Georgia's line. He failed, but on the next play, Captain Shirey went around end for Auburn's touchdown. At the bottom, Dan Post has just missed a tackle, but recovered quickly and downed the runner, after another Georgia tackler had been clipped by the Auburn interference. This tackle by Post was one of the prettiest features of a very colorful battle.

Viewing the News

By CLIFF WHEATLEY

Sit around Judge Johnson's police matinee any day and listen to the wails of the unfortunate who talked themselves straight into the station-house.

Drop off at Ponce de Leon some rainy afternoon where Jack Corbett is attempting to right the good ship Cracker and let him tell you how late Greasy Neale talked himself out of a job as manager of the Atlanta baseball team for the 1923 campaign.

Talking too much is the main reason why Neale's candidacy has been shoved in a pigeon-hole on President Corbett's desk, and the chances are that Greasy's application will be completely overlooked.

Franchise owners don't advertise for managers any longer. They go about getting them just like you purchase apples for Sunday's dumplings. A lot are handled, but only a few are bought. Owners don't let a prospective manager know that they are dickering with several parties for the same job.

Greasy Neale's name had been mentioned to President Corbett. Neale promptly became the leading candidate. Why not? He's a good ball player and a fine handler of men, as his showing with the Washington and Jefferson football team proved. Added to the qualifications is the fact that he is one of the best known figures in sports.

The News Spreads. Neale thought overtures from the Atlanta side of the bargaining meant an offer of a contract. He called up some sporting editor and informed the scribe confidentially of course, that he'd been offered a place in Atlanta. In five minutes the rest of the nation was wondering if Greasy would accept.

Other men with whom President Corbett was in communication began looking elsewhere for employment. It took the Cracker president two days to get the boys lined up once more and Greasy was promptly pigeon-holed.

Dewey Marshall has at least one more year with the Crackers. This was learned Monday, when President Corbett stated that Dewey had been turned back to Atlanta for, additionally, seasoning. Marshall came to this city back in 1920 when Bill Rariden joined the team as manager. Along with them came Buddy Napier.

The Red Sox players had little success, however. Bill is gone for good, but Marshall is a certainty for next season and Napier will probably be asked to string along with this franchise. Marshall was in poor condition throughout the last campaign, but might be successful in 1923.

TULANE GAME TIGERS' NEXT

Auburn, Ala., November 7.—(Special.)—Scrimmaging was again the order of the day yesterday afternoon on Drake field when the Tiger coaches lined up their varsity crew that did not have a chance to participate in the fracas with the Georgia Bulldogs Saturday, against the scrub aggregation.

For more than an hour the second-string men, on which was hitched the "pony" backs, carried the fight into the territory defended by the gray-jerseyed Pitts men. With Ed Allen filling the quarterback position, Harrison and Peterson at halves and Knapp at full, the second-stringers, who kept possession of the ball throughout the scrimmage, found little trouble in making substantial gains over their less-experienced opponents.

Over in another corner of the rectangular field were the regulars doing light signal work in an effort to get rid of the kinked muscles and bruises received in the Bulldog scrap last week-end.

That Georgia game! Hard but fair! Two familiar faces of two stellar backs did not appear amongst the battle-scarred of last Saturday's conflict. Charlie Gibson, who has been directing the attack of the Plainsmen on the offense and scurried like a demon on the defense, did not report for practice. Another important cog of the Orange and Blue machine was loose—"Elviver" Ford, plunging full-back, remained in the gymnasium with the doctor crew, who were busy administering to his wounded ankle.

Both of these youngsters were forced to leave the game Saturday on account of sprains. It is not yet known how much this will hamper the two Tiger backs for the coming conflict.

The University players were hurt at the start of their campaign by being dubbed Atlanta's "wonder team." The title led Kaliska's lads to believe they were unbeatable and unfortunate overconfidence resulted. Later, however, the boys have realized that it's possible for the best teams to get beat, and they are taking no chances.

The sweeping victory over Tech Hi was proof enough that Kaliska's team doesn't mean to go to defeat again, and the chances are that LaGrange fans will see a fighting bunch of youngsters when Atlanta's strongest prep team plays the LaGrange High school later in the week.

Fordham University Wins. New York, November 7.—Fordham university defeated New York university 14 to 0 in their annual football game here on election day.

Daly, West Point Mentor, Points Out Advantages Derived From Athletics

Major Daly Declares Athletics Greater Character-Building Agent Than Anything Else—Urges Development.

Major Daly, one of the greatest quarterbacks to play on the American gridiron, started both at Harvard and West Point in his collegiate days. He is now head coach of the United States Military academy (West Point) football team, and also president of the newly formed American Football Coaches' association, which he founded. Both as player and coach, Major Daly has exerted a constructive influence on football for many years.—Editor's Note.

BY MAJOR C. D. DALY, (West Point Coach.)

Athletics are the glory of our American colleges. They constitute a broad, purifying stream flowing about the youth of the nation. They rescue the college lad from the weak indulgence of the flesh and into the strenuous life of the mind. It is my opinion that in a college curriculum that has many defects, athletics in general stand out as the pre-eminent positive agent for better citizenship and for better manhood.

Football is the greatest of our athletic sports. It is a war game answering to all the great technical principles of war. Morale, will and discipline are its watchwords and they spread their powerful influences broadcast through college life, organizing, controlling and inspiring the undergraduates and the alumni alike. The games fill the student body with an esprit de corps that no other game played by college men can do. The ready subordination of American youths to army team play during the world war, their spirit on the offensive, their high morale and good discipline may in no small part be attributed to the great game of American football.

COACH DOMINATES FOOTBALL.

For all practical purposes the game of football is controlled by the coach. It is he who vitalizes the playing rules. It is the coach that determines the character of the morale, will and discipline to which the players and incidentally the spectator is trained. From countless personal experiences, and observations of the methods used by other coaches and instructors in the American colleges today, it is no exaggeration to state that in character-building (in so far as it is known in our American colleges) the football coach has a most profound effect, direct and indirect, on all the undergraduates.

The Association of Football Coaches has been formed for the purpose of promoting the best interests of the game. It is to be hoped that the ethics of the sport may be improved through discussion and mutual agreement. Scouting, unnecessary roughness and similar items should receive consideration and constructive changes should follow. It is hoped that good sportsmanship and fair play will be developed and extended through the association of the various coaches. It is expected that the best expression of these ideals will be at the annual meeting.

TO CLEAN UP FOOTBALL. In this way it is hoped that those dangers which have been threatening the life of college football will be cleaned up once and for all and that any new problems that the coaches will have to face in the future will be dealt with in the same manner.

Already the recommendations have been the basis of the more important recent legislation by the rules committee.

The personnel of the various committees of the association justifies the expectations that American football will receive helpful and constructive support from the coaches' association. On the rules committee of the association will appear the names of the most expert coaches. Both the east and west will be represented on all of these committees and in this way a national importance will be attached to all that they do.

Alonso Stagg, of Chicago, will be in charge of the committee on ethics. There has been no man in the entire history of the game who has done more to clean up the trouble-makers and the evil conditions which have from time to time existed, than this man. From these two sources we may expect not only advance thought on football but also action that will prove sound and permanent.

AGAINST PROFESSIONALISM. We may look to the coaches' association to extend and develop amateur football. The organization has already condemned professionalism and it will do everything in its power to discourage the professional side of the game. We believe that football is the great school and college game and that where it is played professionally it tends to destroy the morale of the undergraduates. Certainly it is that the professional player, who is interested only in the money to be derived from the game, does not hear and soul into the conflict as does the college man who goes into the game with that or die spirit and all for the glory of the college he represents.

The policy of extending the amateur game internationally has been raised and it is commanding considerable attention. Already Syracuse university has taken a step in this direction by going in a Canada last fall and playing McGill university. This November the Canadian team will journey to the United States and play the Orange warriors. International sport is one of the greatest agencies for promoting a friendly understanding between nations and it can be made a tremendous influence toward the peace of the world. We believe that American football should play its part in this important work.

YOUTH.

The association has recommended a study of the football rules with a view to effecting such changes as may make the game safer and more attractive for the junior players. It is obvious that the youngsters should not attempt the arduous game of the seniors and it is hoped that safe and sane modification of the rules for our grammar school lads may be effected. In this way the prejudice that some parents have against football may be overcome and the lads thus prepared for the senior game later on.

The American Football Coaches' association can render excellent service along the lines suggested above. Recently it has been suggested that our coaches or their representative at each institution should be a faculty member. We believe that the suggestion is an excellent one. Such a policy would unquestionably broaden the viewpoint of our college faculty members and would tend to bring them in closer touch with the vital extra academic interests of undergraduate life. In this way we believe the students would get to feel that they had something in common with the faculty and that the members of the teaching force would also better understand the motives of the undergraduates.

In our American colleges where youth has so much unsupervised free time, where we may, in most cases, find a faculty member who would not be well to impose on the ancient academic supervision of our lads the realities of the present-day athletic life of college football, the high morale and absorbing interest. To do so would not only strengthen the college faculty and its control, but it would also serve the very vital national necessities of demand higher physical standards than have yet been obtained.

TYPISTS PLAY DECATUR HIGH

Commercial High will journey over to Decatur to meet that powerful little Decatur High eleven Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This should be an interesting game from beginning to end since Decatur has already made a name for itself and the Commercial crew has improved 100 per cent since the opening of the season.

As things stand now, the dope is decidedly against the Atlanta boys. Commercial High will average about 145 pounds to the man and Decatur will pull the scales close around this figure. Commercial High has among its numbers some very good passers and an exceptionally good punter and drop-kicker. Powell Doss is the punter and Welch the drop-kicker. These two boys will make good college football men some day.

Commercial High goes to Decatur with practically a team made up of freshmen. Only two men from last year's varsity are in the lineup this year, and everything that this school had produced in the way of football material has been constructed from the ground up. At the opening of the football season they had practically nothing, but with hard work and consistent practice they have moulded quite a worthy little aggregation.

Decatur High has been one of the much-discussed prep teams of the season and has beaten some tough opponents.

Every WomanFine Arts Club Recital
At Howard Candler Home

The palatial home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Candler in Druid Hills formed the setting for a congenial coming together Tuesday morning of the members of the Fine Arts club to hear a recital of music, and in spite of the steady rain, a roll call of the membership would have found few missing. Miss Mildred Delma, of New York, singing songs in costume, was the attraction, and she was assisted by Mr. Candler and the aëlian organ, and Miss Ethel Beyer, piano accompanist to the singer.

Miss Delma's program was one of considerable variety, with dominance of musical interest in her group of "Songs from the Hebrides," which were introduced in this country last season, and some romance folk songs of South America. In groups of French "action" songs and Chinese "Drolleries" Miss Delma proved herself even more gifted as "diseuse" than as singer. A Chinese costume of richness and becomingness enhanced interest in the Oriental songs and the Spanish and South American group were heightened in atmosphere by the singer's striking Spanish garb. In the Habanera from Carmen she proved herself again the clever entertainer, the constant dance proving a picturesque close to her program.

Miss Ethel Beyer at the piano provided her usual quality of accompaniment—sympathetic, sympathetic, beautiful, and Mr. Candler manipulated the wonderful aëlian organ with the skill and the taste of musical appreciation.

The artists of the morning had to divide interest, however, with enjoyment of the beauty of the house and grounds, which have not long been completed.

The scene of the recital was the great reception hall in the center of the house, its decoration in ivory and brown and the intervening tones. The French windows at one side afford glimpses of the formal garden and marble fountain in the courtyard, flanked by long galleries like Spanish arcades. The library and smaller drawing rooms, with a wonderful tapestry room looking out to the greenhouse and the garage, which is like the lodge on great estates, open off the main reception hall, and there is generous space outside of marble and tiled terrace.

Flowers were everywhere—great urns of perfect chrysanthemums and dahlias in luxury of color and high development, and through the windows were alluring glimpses of the bright hues of autumn foliage. The drive to the house winds through grounds which are a veritable park of gracious view in every direction, with formal gardens and pergolas interlarding occasionally the stately groves of magnificent trees, all beautiful even in the rain.

The occasion was made one for formal dress, and the velvet and satins, furs and feathers the women wore added their own detail of material luxury to an appropriate environment for music.

Mrs. Candler, receiving the company, was assisted by Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, who announced the program numbers.

Mrs. Nan Stephens, honorary president of the Fine Arts club, announced that the next program would be devoted to art, the program to be arranged by Mrs. E. W. More and presented at the driving club.

She invited also the patronage of the club members for Miss Delma's recital on Saturday night at Agnes Scott college under the auspices of the college alumnae.

PRETTY "Y" GIRLS TO CONDUCT "TRIP AROUND WORLD"

Pretty Atlanta girls to conduct a "Trip Around the World." Left to right: Miss Louise Morgan, the woman of India; Miss Doris Martin, the French dancing girl; Miss Mattie Terrell, the little Dutch boy. The world tour is dated for November 8-9 at the Y. W. C. A.

The Y. W. C. A., Peachtree arcade, had taken on the appearance of foreign lands Tuesday as the booths were being installed and decorated for the association's spectacular "Trip Around the World," to be given on the afternoon and evening of today and Thursday of this week.

In the cafeteria and tea room preparations were being made for the chicken chop suey supper that will be served from 6 to 9 o'clock both evenings of the world trip. Young King, a Chinese cook, will demonstrate his skill by showing the world-trip patrons what is real chicken chop suey. Supper will be directed by Mrs. Bertha W. Ramsey, cafeteria director.

The Chinese booth will be decorated with priceless draperies, brocades and banners and Oriental rugs. Chinese lanterns will be used and girls dressed in Chinese costumes will serve the tables.

Admission to the world trip will be 50 cents, which will include all sight-seeing. The chop suey supper will be 75 cents a plate. Patrons will have supper without the trip or both, as they prefer.

Tuesday, Mrs. John Toler, president of the Overseas club, was placing in her booth representing France, the furnishings of a French peasant's home with its old stone fireplace, spinning wheel and artificial flowers in a glass cage.

The pictures of a peasant's home decorate the walls of the booth and Mrs. Toler and those to be with her on the world trip will wear the plain dress of the peasant. Cercle Francaise Officers Are Elected at High School

The Cercle Francaise of the Girls' High school held a meeting Monday afternoon in Browning hall at the school, and elected officers for the year.

Those elected were as follows: Miss Gertrude Harris, president; Miss Sarah White, vice president; and Miss Catherine Bosworth, secretary.

An important feature of the afternoon was the unanimous endorsement of Mrs. Annie T. Wise, principal of the Commercial High school, as a candidate for the "Good Will" visit to France, reciting the endorsement of the Atlanta Woman's club and the Parent-Teacher association of Atlanta.

The French Cercle feels that Mrs. Wise speaks French fluently, is most highly educated and on her return will be of the greatest assistance to the "Cercle" and all the schools. Another feature of the meeting was the singing of many French songs and the marching song, "Madelon," given with so much gusto and spirit that the head of the music department complimented it highly.

The "Cercle Francaise" is affiliated with the Alliance Francaise and is one of the leading organizations at Girls' High school.

The French club works with the French department of the school, which is conducted under the leadership of Miss Mattie Slaton, the other teachers being Miss Marie Culver, Miss Margaret Woods and Miss American Woodberry.

The Cercle Francaise plans also to do collaborative work with the dramatic class of the school, which is taught by Miss Annabel Horne. Many games and songs will be learned, the teaching of music in French aiding admirably in the placing of the voice.

A program committee was appointed Monday, and it will announce other features at an early date.

needlework guild will be held Tuesday, November 14, instead of the date decided upon formerly, and will take place at the home of Mrs. Arnold Broyles, honorary president, 155 Juniper street.

The officers of the guild are requested to attend the business meeting at 3 o'clock when the routine of the year's work is settled.

The directors are invited to attend the tea at 4 o'clock at which they are entertained each year by the officers of the organization.

Women Voters to Hold Meeting.

The first session of the school for voters to be conducted by the Women Voters' league of the eleventh ward will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Whiteford avenue school house.

An address by Mrs. Sanford Gayday, president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, will be an interesting feature of this opening session of the school.

A cordial invitation is extended to everyone interested.

Pay Visit To Atlanta.

The many friends of Santa Solomonoff, former dancing master at Washington seminary, will be interested to learn that he and Mrs. Solomonoff passed through Atlanta Monday afternoon, stopping over for an hour, and were met by several friends and former pupils. Mr. and Mrs. Solomonoff, who has just filled an engagement at one of the theaters in New Orleans, were on their way to New York, where they will sail on the 15th for Australia for a tour of the leading theaters of that country. Their last tour covered this country from California to New York, and they have met with remarkable success on the Orpheum circuit.

Mr. Solomonoff is well remembered here for the ballets he put on at the Auditorium, in which 100 of his pupils took part in a fantastic dancing pantomime spectacle, being the same as formerly produced in old Russia. He also had the distinction of being the first to give an extensive course in dancing free to the deaf and dumb.

State President to Address Business Women's Clubs

Miss Dora Mendes, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, will be the guest of honor tonight at the supper meeting of the Atlanta Club of Business and Professional Women.

The Atlanta Club of Business and Professional Women has been invited to attend, and advance reservations for both clubs indicate a gathering of perhaps 150.

Miss Mendes, who has charge of the women's department of The Savannah Press, has recently been elected state president of the federation, and has already begun an aggressive plan of club extension. She is now on a flying trip to include Macon, Dublin and Atlanta, in which cities she will confer with state officers and committee chairmen on extension and other work of the federation.

Miss Mendes has been one of the leaders since the start in the federation movement in Georgia. She was one of the delegates to the first national convention in St. Louis in 1919, was one of the organizers of the Savannah club, which now publishes its own monthly bulletin and has made enough money out of it to pay all expenses and provide funds for a scholarship this year, besides other valuable civic work and work for the club members themselves.

At the meeting tonight the new Atlanta club will hear reports on its own membership campaign and a contest which has been carried on during the past month among the membership. Miss Jane Van de Vraede, president, will be in the chair. The Catholic club, which, with a paid membership under 100, has a mean attendance of from forty to fifty at its semi-monthly meetings, will also be largely represented. Both clubs have members on the state board of directors.

Members of either club who have not made reservations are urged to do so at once through Miss E. L. Duncan, 15 West Alexander street.

Twenty New Members Are Received Into League

The reception of the twenty newly elected members in the Atlanta Junior league was made the feature of the meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club, the list including Misses Louise Inman, Anne Grant, Virginia Pegram, Martha Boynton, Mary Shedd, Eskine Jarnigan, Sarah Orme, Emmie Nixon, Elizabeth Kontz, Margaret Morgan, Emily Davis, Katharine Haverly, Marjorie Strinfolow, Arabelle Dudley, Douglas Paine, Mrs. Philip Wilcox, Mrs. Wellborn Blalock, Mrs. Walter Wellborn, Mrs. Orme Campbell and Mrs. Robin Adair.

Miss Marion Stearns, president of the organization, made an appropriate address of welcome to these young women who will at once begin active work, as each and every member of the junior league pledges her time and efforts to take active part in the constructive and worth-while program which is symbolic of the junior league.

Over 100 members were present at the meeting, and after the business part of the program was concluded, tea was served.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

Second Hand.
I suppose that the fashion which dictates to a really nice young couple the purchase of old furniture rather than new, continues to rage. This mania is an old one; in Europe we find crowds of Americans going about buying oak dressers, mahogany tables and chairs; the dressers are said to be Jacobean, the chairs Chippendale. They are bought at enormous prices and go to decorate American homes.
That is well enough when the home is established, and when the furniture has genuine pretensions to beauty and antiquity. But when I reflect that young couples, starting out in life absolutely new, are given to buying second-hand furniture merely because it is cheap, and not at all because it is beautiful or rare, I feel that they do something out of keeping with their newly wedded state. The idea of second-hand furniture is disagreeable. Too many hands have fingered this table edge. Too many bodies have sickened and died within the confines of this bed. I am not thinking of the obvious dangers, such as insects or infections, though those are obvious enough. I am thinking of something mental. I feel that the atmosphere round a young couple should not be made of discarded furniture or things sold up for debt, things not wanted. This is sentimental perhaps, but the novelty of marriage does not last very long; it can be assisted by change, by varied pleasures, by moving from place to place; a young couple can increase its honeymoon. So it makes a bad start when it surrounds itself with worn old things which it can make only more worn. To spoil a thing, to spoil it oneself, that is better than aging the old.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Litch
Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The ABC of Retailing," etc.

In buying canned goods you should never choose the cans because of the pictures on the labels. This may seem absurd, but many shoppers do it. The safest way is to choose by brand name. Moreover, you should not hesitate to require of your dealer as much information regarding the quantity and quality of canned foods as you demand in purchasing food in any other form. Formerly canners sealed their cans by soldering. Frequently drops of solder were lost in the can. Now the best packers use a "sanitary" can, with the food hermetically sealed without the use of solder. Such cans are stamped "sanitary" on one end, and you should certainly know these cans for your own safety. If the can is rusted on the outside, the contents are not necessarily bad, but if it is rusted on the inside it may seriously affect your food. You may find that soldered cans are often rusted in this way at the soldered end. The tins you buy should be a quarter lined to prevent the undesirable reaction between acid fruits and vegetables and the metal of the can. This is particularly important because tin prices have increased and the tin covering of sheet metal used for the manufacture of cans has become very thin. A talk tomorrow about buying col-

INVISIBLE HUSBAND

By Maguerite Hurter

INSTALLMENT NO. 39.

A Dangerous Rendezvous.

At five minutes before two, Deborah slipped into her little ulster, grabbed her make-up box, and paused only to wonder whether she ought to hide the little diamond watch.

"Johnnie may get back ahead of me. I wouldn't do for her to find out about it—she might tell Phyllis!"

Deb carefully wrapped the expensive bauble in the old make-up towel and tucked it into the pocket of her worn valise.

"There—that's out of the way. Maybe I'd better leave a note for Johnnie."

"One! two!—The clock struck! She'd be late meeting Finkenberg at the dock, but, hastily she scribbled, 'Dear Johnnie, I'm going to the lake with Finkenberg for the camp scene, Deb.'"

Then down the log stairs, two at a time, Deborah flew to keep her appointment at the lake. . . . Finkenberg was there waiting. In his arms he held a huge package.

"Your costume, mildly?" he tried to say airily.

Suddenly it struck Deborah—where could she change?

"Shall I go back and put 'em on?" she suggested eagerly.

"No—no time. You can change in the shack up there. . . . You won't need that make-up, either—Phyllis will have plenty, Lord knows!"

Deborah left the tin box in the house, then nervously stepped into a frail canoe ahead of him. He was so fat! It was a wonder the tiny craft did not crack and sink, but they went drifting out on to the heavenly breast of Raquet lake, and Deborah was soon lost in the joy of the scenery.

"How pretty the inn looks from here, doesn't it, Mr. Finkenberg?" she chirped.

"All made o'logs," he commented practically. "Nice house—plain but good. Like your meals!"

"Yes—oh yes, indeed," Deb assented, but to herself she groaned, "isn't it awful? Always material."

"Not cold are you?"

"No—not cold," Deborah declared, but it was true she had shivered. Something in his gaze made her freeze into herself, even though the sun was sprinkling them with golden beams, and the very waves were glowing with warmth and life.

Finkenberg was a good hand at paddling, and it was no time before they had glided out of the lake and were drifting into a narrow stream overhung with willow trees.

"How wonderful," Deb breathed again, intoxicated with the sheer shelter of the scene. "It's fine being in the shade—after the sun, isn't it?"

Finkenberg rested his paddle and looked at her breathlessly, "Yes—it's great stuff up here."

Deborah shuddered again. The grossness of the man was almost too overcome. It was hard to realize that God had made the world so beautiful and then permitted human things like this to mar it all.

"Great fishing up the lake?"

"Yes," Deb sighed without interest. Fishing! Of course, men liked fishing, but fat old Finkenberg was probably thinking only of eating the fish. Snacking his lips—gobbling everything up—that's the kind he was.

Deborah was relieved that paddling the canoe kept him away from her. From his glee she realized that she might not be comfortable any too near him. Then she began to realize what she had done. Alone with him, away up the river like this. How could she be sure that they would meet the company?—Something might happen.

"Well, here we are at the lake!" he announced, and Deborah's fears were allayed as they got out of the narrow Marion river and sailed across the wide blue of the lake. It was so open.

"We meet the company here?" Deb suggested with almost evident relief.

"At the end of the lake—where you see the shack. Can you make it out?"

Deborah squinted across the sunny waters, but her eyes were dizzy in the sunlight. . . . It was getting warm. . . . terribly warm.

"Do you freckle?" Finkenberg asked rather prosaically, just as Deborah was beginning to fear he was keeping his gaze upon her face too long.

"No—no, I don't freckle," she replied and he nodded approvingly.

"Had in pictures—terrible. Zita Ray had 'em—big ones. . . . Better pull your hat over your eyes—this is a good sun."

"Yes— isn't it?" Deborah breathed deeply. It was strangely agitating to go on talking small talk this way. Freckles and fish and such things, when her soul was clutched in fear. She was beginning to make out the shore—the place where the old shack stood—rough lean-to made of logs.

"Is that where we meet them?"

Finkenberg lit an ugly black cigar and spat in the water.

"I'll tell you when we get there—there's another shack at the end. That's our location."

"Oh!"

They landed rather quietly. Deborah felt suddenly in a panic as she stepped out of the canoe. She had been safe there, but as they left the canoe banked up, and Finkenberg took her elbow, she began to realize that she had indeed burned her bridges. She was walking straight into the wilderness with a man she feared with only too just cause.

The path was muddy and rough. She stumbled once or twice.

"You ought to have the boots on. Better sit on this log and put 'em on!"

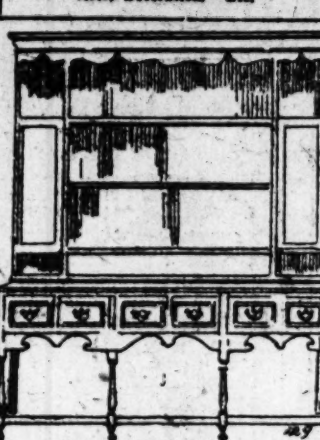

Finkenberg opened the package, and without waiting for Deborah's consent, slipped off her tiny patent leather pumps and proceeded to lace up the big brown shoes.

"Isn't this great, being out here," he intimated. "Just you and I—all by ourselves."

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

No. 120—Use of Italian Furniture

So many houses nowadays are designed in the Italian feeling and call for furniture in a harmonious style. Much of the Italian renaissance furniture is too heavy for modern houses, but an Italian cabinet, like the one depicted above, may be used effectively in a room even with modern furniture, provided that the modern furniture is made upon the same simple lines as the cabinet.

This cabinet would allow of our displaying several pieces of lovely colored pottery, which would heighten the interesting effect of the room and lift it out of the drab.

In the days when such a cabinet was made people did not have comfortable chairs and sofas, such as we are accustomed to. There is no reason, however, why they should not be used in the same room, and there are many lovely tapestries and velvets made today that would be very suitable for upholstering them. One chair might even be covered with chintz.

The words "Italian Renaissance" may make you think of palaces. Don't be frightened. Small villas abounded in those days along with the palaces. This style calls for few, though well-chosen, pieces of furniture, which in these days of high prices is a consideration.

Above all, don't spoil your room with too many trifles. This style calls for reserve.

SHE GETS SOME EFFECT—THO' IN DIFFERENT WAY

No one short of Dame Fashion could have induced Miss Bob to "let it grow" and adopt the peasant coiffure. And even now she can't dispense with fluffy puffs over her ears entirely and so she wears a kind of a poke bonnet with a little puff of monkey fur attached to the under brim and covering each ear. And more than that, indeed, the monkey fur is dyed just to the shade of her hair. Oh, where there's a woman there's a way—of getting around fashion even.

Grow your own fruit!

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Knotty Problem.

The knots in children's shoestrings can be undone readily with the aid of a pair of piners.

Did You Know.

That a hotter oven is required for anything mixed with water than for things mixed with milk?

Old Stockings.

If you expect to move save your old stockings to wrap the legs of the prized tables or chairs. They will not tear like paper and yet are easily manipulated.

Bows on Nighties.

A good way to have the bows always fresh and dainty on her nightgowns is to work two buttonholes wherever the ribbon is desired. The ribbons can be removed when the gown goes to the laundry and are like new with each wearing.

Macaroni.

The best way to cook macaroni is to have a large amount of water already boiling before the macaroni is put in and keep the water bubbling until it is tender. Macaroni will take less time to boil in this manner and will not stick to the bottom of the pan.

The United States Marines are called "Leatherstocks" for reason that years ago their full dress coats were worn with a leather strap across the neck.

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me."

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also."

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

WEEKLY HAND TREATMENTS.

The busiest woman is sure to be the one who needs hand treatments the most. The housewife can manage a little time each day to repair the ravages of cooking and cleaning. But the business woman is rarely mistress of her hours, that is she will be so tired at night that she will want to rest or enjoy herself, rather than spend her precious leisure beautifying herself.

For such women I would suggest a weekly hand treatment that will not take a great deal of time. This is to wear what are called cosmetic gloves every Saturday night, since Sunday morning she will have more time to continue the treatment. She can purchase any number of bleaching pastes which come for this purpose but plain vaseline or cold cream will do if the hands are simply dry and old looking. A bleaching paste is made as follows:

- | | |
|----------------|----------------|
| Powdered myrrh | 1 ounce |
| Honey | 4 ounces |
| Yellow wax | 2 ounces |
| Rosewater | 6 ounces |

Melt the wax and stir in the myrrh, beat thoroughly and add the honey and rosewater and a little plain glycerine. As it cools it hardens, but by adding the glycerine you will soon have a paste that will spread easily.

Search the hands thoroughly with hot water and soap, removing stains with lemon juice. Rinse, rub in a generous quantity of the paste and pull on over the hands a pair of rubber gloves. Wear these all night. In the morning wash off the paste with soap and water and as soon as convenient afterwards give the hands a thorough manicure. Such a treatment once a week will always keep the hands pretty.

Capitla.—A girl of 15, 5 ft. 4 in., is normal weight at 110 to 115 pounds. If your hair becomes too oily before shampoo time dust some powder through it and allow it to remain on only long enough to absorb the excess oil. Shake all of this out of the hair, as any that remains will cause it to dry and become evened brittle.

Oxforas and woolen hosiery make a comfortable combination as they afford protection and freedom for exercising.

Turkey.—Hair-lin is a case for expert surgery. No form will avail. All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes is care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in due turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.

Observe These Simple Rules:

1. Anyone may compete, except our employees or their relatives. Prize winners in other similar word contests are also ineligible.

2. Use only one side of the paper in writing your answers. You must number each page and each word submitted consecutively—1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address in the upper right hand corner of each page. All answers must be mailed by December 2, 1922, to The Atlanta Constitution. A 5 per cent additional prize will be awarded for promptness as specified in the prize list.

3. The answer having the largest number of words which correctly name objects shown in the picture wins—First Prize, etc.

4. In the event of ties, the full amount of the prize will be awarded each tying contestant.

5. The winning list will be made up from applicable words in all answers submitted and not from any predetermined or master list. One credit will be allowed for each correct word in your answer, and one credit will be deducted for each incorrect word or omission.

6. Three independent judges will judge the answers and award the prizes. Webster's New International Dictionary will be used by the judges as authority for all words. It is understood and agreed that participants entering this game will accept the judges' decision as final and conclusive.

7. Do not use obsolete, compound or hyphenated words, or any word made up of two or more complete English words.

8. Words of the same spelling can be used only once. Where the singular is used the plural must not be used, and vice versa.

9. Only one answer will be accepted from a family or from a group of persons who have worked on the picture together.

10. Every answer will receive the same consideration, regardless whether or not a subscription has been sent in. Neatness, style or handwriting will have no bearing on judging the winners.

11. Announcement of the prize winners and the winning list of words, together with the correct list determined by the judges, will be announced in the columns of The Constitution just as soon after the close of the game as possible.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week

The Riddle of the Night

BY T. W. HANSHEW

Next Week, "Man to Man"
By Jackson Gregory

At the angle of the wall he stopped suddenly, and began to whisper. The wall door clicked and swung open, and Dollops was beside him.

"Kit-bax-quick!" whispered Cleek. "Need evening suit. Move sharp. I'm in a hurry."

"Right-o!" said Dollops, and vanished like a blown-out light. In half a minute's time he was back again, and the kit-bax with him.

"Be back here by 9 o'clock at the latest," said Cleek. "I shall very likely need you. Cut along!" Then he caught up the kit-bax, whisked away with it into the darkness, and five minutes later stood again in the room which he had so recently left.

Accustomed to rapid dressing, he got into his evening clothes in less time than it would have taken most men to unpack and then, taking the half-burned labels from his pocket-book, studied them closely. None was so big as the one which he had first inspected, but fortunately one was a fragment of the opposite side, so that by joining the two together he was able to make out the greater part of it.

Clearly the original label must have read:

JETANOLA
An Unrivaled Preparation
For Boots, Shoes and All Leather Goods.

Manufactured Solely by
FERDINAND LOVETSKI
63 Essex Row, New York

Of two things Cleek was sure beyond all question of error. First, that the dead man was not Ferdinand Lovetski—not in any way connected with Ferdinand Lovetski, to be precise. Second, that the markings on the shirt were not made with "Jetanola" or any other kind of blacking.

Cleek knew that Lovetski had been in his grave these seven years past! In his old Vanishing Crackman days, in those repeated years when Cleek and Margot had cast their lot together and he had been the chosen consort of the queen of the apaches, Lovetski down on his luck, bankrupt through dissipation, a thief by nature and a lazy vagabond at heart, had joined the apaches.

Not for long, however. Within six months word had come to him of the death of a relative in his native Russia, and of a little property that was now his by right of inheritance; and he was for saving good-bye to his new colleagues and journeying on to Moscow to claim his little fortune.

But the law of the commonwealth, and Margot and her band had demanded the usual division. Lovetski had rebelled against it; he had sworn that he would not share his inheritance with his knife-jagged body was fished out of the Seine.

That was seven years ago; and now here was Lord St. Ulmer burning labels that had been in his hands when that dead man was in honest business, and had lost it simply through dissipation after the police had discovered that Essex Row was used as a meeting-place for several "wanted" aliens, and had raided it and closed it up. Lovetski had never belonged to the brotherhood; had never even known that they met under that roof until the time of the raid.

After that drink got him. It was only a step from that to the apaches, and from the apaches to the Seine. What few paltry effects Lovetski had possessed when he joined the apaches were left in his room. The apaches had gone through them and voted them not worth ten sous the lot—and very probably they were not. Still there might have been letters, and there might have been some unkind labels; fellows of that sort would be apt to keep things of that kind. If this Lord St. Ulmer had come into possession of things that were left in the secret haunts of the apaches—Decidedly it would be an advantage to get a look at his lordship.

Cleek whisked off his coat, waistcoat, and necktie, and made the change to dress suit with striped waistcoat in a twinkling. Another and more subtle "change"—yet made even quicker—altered his countenance so completely that not once trace of likeness to Mr. Philip Barclay remained. A moment later he had passed swiftly out of the room and was tapping upon Lord St. Ulmer's door.

A faint "enick" sounded which his trained ears identified at once as the switching off of an electric light and quick as he was in opening the door, it was an utterly black room he entered.

"Who are you? What do you want?" a voice rapped out with an unmistakable note of alarm in it.

"Master sent me up, your lordship."

he made another discovery; his lordship was not alone in the room.

Some one was there with him, some one who simply gave an amazed exclamation, then moved softly and snickered on the light.

Cleek saw a bed, and on it a man who had turned over, so that his face was to the opposite wall, while an open newspaper—one of many—almost covered his head. Beside that bed there was a table and salver loaded with many dishes.

With his hand on the switch that controlled the electric light, his head bent forward, and his small, ferret eyes brightly gleaming, Mr. Harry Raynor stood looking him in the face.

"Hello! I say, who the devil are you?" snarled that startled and amazed young man. "What's your game?"

Without one word of reply Cleek backed out of the door, shut it sharply after him, snicked out the electric light in the passage, and dodged back into his own room with the fleet suddenness of a hunted hare.

In a twinkling young Raynor was out after him, being obliged to stop and turn on the extinguished light, but by the time he had done this Cleek was safely out of sight, and was engaged in tearing off his evening clothes.

Lord St. Ulmer began to rattle out an absolute fusillade of excited cries and frightened queries and suggestions and to tug at the bell rope hanging besides his bed. This brought the servants flocking up by one staircase and the general and a couple of footmen dashing up by another; and for the next twenty seconds there was confusion and hubbub.

Suddenly the door of the room adjoining his lordship's was drawn sharply inward, and then as sharply reclosed until it left but a half foot or so between itself and the casing, and through that half foot of space the head of Mr. Philip Barclay was thrust; not, however, before the general and his son and the two footmen had a chance to see that the owner of that head was arrayed simply in his underclothing.

Apparently Mr. Birch was in a state of excitement and did not at once notice the presence of the general or his son.

"I say, dash it all; what's up? What are you bouncers kicking up all this noise about? And why on earth hasn't one of you answered my ring?" he hurriedly addressed the nearer of the two footmen. "I say, nip downstairs, one of you, and tell that valet chap to bring back my clothes, and not to bother about brushing them until after I go to bed. Mr. Harry promised to lend me a suit of evening togs, but went off without doing so, blow him! And I haven't a blessed living stitch to put on."

"Good Lord, Barclay! I do beg a thousand pardons, old chap!" exclaimed young Raynor. "Sorry I forgot about the evening togs, dear boy."

And at once he ordered a servant to fetch the suit.

The discovery of an open window led to the conclusion that the man who had entered St. Ulmer's room was a sneak thief, and the house quieted down after a thorough but ineffectual search for him had been made.

Perplexed with his thoughts, Cleek was almost startled at the sound of the second dinner gong, and he waited swiftly to the glass to note the effect of his borrowed plumes. They were certainly not a good fit, and he passed his hand over the wrinkled breast; then his fingers stopped suddenly at the touch of something hard in the pocket.

Slowly, his lips drawn to a soundless whistle, he pulled out a round metal object, and looked at it with startled eyes, his thoughts in a sudden conflicting whirl.

Last night, when he had found the golden capsule with the name of Katharine upon it, and had given Mr. Nolkom a brief history of the famous huile violette and the methods of the grande dames of old, he had declared that he knew of but one woman who had ever one of those antique scent bracelets, and knew of her wearing it simply because he had stolen it from a famous collection and given it to her.

Tonight that identical bracelet, with the scent globe and the stopper cut from an emerald and the stone again Margot's bracelet in the pocket of Harry Raynor's coat!

After dinner, Mrs. Raynor, rising, gave the hint to the ladies that it was time to return to the drawing room and to leave the gentlemen to their half hour with the coffee and cigars and the cigars. But tonight the general would have none of these.

"Young men to young men's pleasure, gentlemen. I'm an old boy, and I'm sleepy," he said immediately after

"Mary's Ankle."

(At the Forsyth.) The melodrama days are here, the saddest of the year, and it takes "Mary's Ankle" or something equally as humorous and entertaining to cheer the drooping spirits of the populace and keep them in their minds that life is worth while after all. There may be some sad people among the crowds entering the Forsyth this week but it is one hundred to one that when they leave they have forgotten that they were ever sad or downhearted. "Mary's Ankle" as it is being presented by the Forsyth Players is the superior of any performance of this "all-American" farce ever presented in this city and big houses have been the rule at every show so far this week.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyle.) Mingled with the music make up a most excellent bill at Keith's Lyle theater for the first half of the week, and Roger Gray, with his nimble and able assistant, Eugene Vane, lead the fun cohorts that their bits in a manner which adds considerably to the gaiety of nations. Gray and partner deal in comedy and Gray's impersonation of a traffic cop lends him an admirable medium. His partner, such an individual, is a show in herself. Ann Gray, a harpist, who also has a splendid voice, helps materially in the general merit of the bill, as do Walter and Gould, a pair of affable comedians; Ruby Raymond and two dancing fools; and Harvard, Bruce and Wynter, gymnasts of a high order.

A free-for-all burlesque, in which all five acts take active and zealous part, rounds out the bill and sends away the audience with a firm determination to return to this popular house as soon and as often as mundane chance permits.

Vlasta Maslova.

(At Loew's Grand.) Vlasta Maslova and company in "Dance Evolution," the top line attraction of the vaudeville bill at Loew's Grand theater for the first half of the week, are the stars of the evening with tonight's performance. This is one of the most colorful and entertaining dance revues that has appeared here in vaudeville in many a month. Miss Maslova is an artist of great accomplishments, her toe dancing is grace itself. There are six in the company, four of whom are charming and graceful girls who execute many variety of fancy dances.

"The Yellow Wallpaper"

The act is presented with special scenery and many changes of costumes. Other good offerings are Hawkins & Mack, black-face comedians; Fred Weber and company, in an extremely vaudevilian novelty "At the Door"; Armstrong & Tyson in refreshing character songs and dances; and a variety of other acts.

Thomas Meighan.
(At the Howard.) "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow" is most gripping and interesting, while Thomas Meighan, the star, and his supporting company contributed much to make it enjoyable.

Mr. Meighan is the hero, and he plays a highly difficult role with consummate skill. The story is that of a reckless young man who is captivated by the charms of two women and cannot choose between them. The role requires a great amount of versatility on Mr. Meighan's part, and he handles it with such ingenuity that he is certain to gain new hosts of admirers. One of the many features that commend this play to the public is the excellent cast, which includes the notable actors, Leatrice Joy, June Elvidge, Eva Novak, Albert Rosco, Laurence Wheat and others. It is a picture which abounds in romance, adventure, love, action and intrigue.

Fashion Promenade.

(At the Metropolitan.) The Irene Castle Fashion Promenade interpreted by six strikingly attractive models, all personally selected by Irene Castle, and displaying the season's most alluring creations in dress, continues to evoke enthusiastic praise from Metropolitan patrons. As a finale to the evening act comes a clever dance number that is worthy of a top-line position on any program. Joseph E. Daniel, formerly dancing partner to Edith Kelly, Journal and Virginia Watson, recently star of "Listen Lester," are presented in a group of the latest ballroom dances.

The feature, "Slim Shoulders," shows Irene Castle in a setting that charmingly displays her grace and beauty. The locale is Palm Beach and New York and the incident is a love story set in the surroundings best suited to her type.

NOMINEE BEATEN IN SENATE RACE IN 4TH DISTRICT

Brunswick, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—Charles S. Arns, former state game commissioner and independent candidate for senator from the fourth district, composed of the counties of Glynn, Charlton and Camden, was today elected senator over James T. Voelle, the regular democratic nominee, by a majority of 202, according to unofficial returns.

The contest was the most spirited in the three counties in many years and much bitterness prevailed. Reports received here tonight are that Camden county citizens feel that they have been outraged by the other two counties of the district by voting against the man they had regarded as their own.

Nationally Famous Actress New Forsyth Players Star

Miss Belle Bennett, the "Sweetheart of San Francisco," Arrives to Succeed Miss Rittenhouse.

BY WALTER CHAMBERS.
"The Sweetheart of San Francisco," as Miss Belle Bennett was affectionately known in the metropolis of the west coast, according to press notices, is now among us. She arrived in Atlanta Monday night and Tuesday began rehearsals with the Forsyth Players. She is succeeding Miss Florence Rittenhouse, who ends her engagement this week, starting in "Mary's Ankle."

Miss Bennett is reputed to be the most captivating, as well as the highest paid, star in stock companies. Not being in the confidence of Wilson Remond, I can't say as to the size of her weekly envelope, but she is most certainly captivating.

Al H. Woods, noted theatrical director, styles Miss Bennett his "Ginger Star." This was because, as confessed yesterday, she took the leading role in one of Mr. Woods' latest productions on 25 minutes notice. Miss Bennett, who is a native of San Francisco, has been "loaned" to the Forsyth Players.

Miss Bennett was reared in an atmosphere of the stage, being the daughter of Billy Bennett, a famous actor-manager. Her mother starred in "Girl of the Golden West" when it was first presented, and at the age of 11 Miss Bennett yet took a part in the production.

But her experience goes back even further than this, to the time when, years ago, she did play the part of "Little Rose" in "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Other early appearances included "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "Little Eva" and other juveniles.

In 1915 Miss Bennett joined the Universal pictures organization and for four years ago was the star of stock companies in San Francisco, where she starred at eleven performances each day for 104 weeks, thus breaking all records.

"Trains can not run, whistles will."

AHPASIA VICTIM VISITED ATLANTA DURING TRAVELS

J. Howard Jayne, business man and former legislator from the 11th district, was visited at his home about two weeks ago and who is believed to have been a victim of aphasia, visited Atlanta from October 30 to November 1, as revealed by a search of local hotel directories Tuesday.

On October 30 Jayne registered at the Southern hotel and remained there until the night of November 1. At both hotels, clerks report, he appeared normal and did nothing to direct attention to himself.

Jayne is in a Chicago hospital, said to be recovering from an attack of aphasia. He has not yet told a word of his wanderings, but says that he was wounded by a man named Long. He is suffering from a blow on the head and his wife and sister are in attendance.

He visited Chattanooga and Birmingham in addition to Atlanta.

JOHN S. LESTER FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE HELD HERE

The body was accompanied by Mrs. Lester, who was with him at the time of his death. Harry Strungnell, sales manager of the Remington Arms company, at home office in New York, and Will E. Leslie, district superintendent of the company in Charlotte, North Carolina.

Mr. Lester was a well known representative of the Remington Arms company. He was returning to New York from a hardware convention in Atlanta on October 21. He was shot and never regained consciousness.

Besides his wife and sister, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. A. A. Lester, of Atlanta. Interment will be in West View cemetery. H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.
